PREFACE.

WITH the view of improving my knowledge of the English language, and of re-establishing my health, which had been much impaired, I went to reside at Mount Airy College, near Germantown, Pennsylvania, with its estimable proprietor, Col. A. L. ROUMFORT.* Finding that the Spanish class was without a teacher, I assumed the duties, and continued them for nine months, to the entire satisfaction of the proprietor and that of my beloved pupils, as testified by the strongest expressions of the former, who repeatedly urged me to remain, and the general regret of the latter at my necessary departure.

During my stay there, I renewed my acquaintance with * The personal accomplishments, education and talents of this gentleman, are appreciated by all who have the pleasure of his acquaintance. His college ranks among the best in the state of Pennsylvania. Its location, the purity of the air and water, the extensive arrangements for the accommodation and recreation of the pupils, render it salubrious, pleasant, and advantageous. English, French, Spanish, Greek, and Latin, are taught; likewise penmanship, mathematics in all their branches, music, dancing and fencing. Strict morals and urbanity of manners are also duly enforced. The pupils are well attended at all times, and very carefully and particularly so in case of sickness, during which all the care is bestowed that could be given by parents or relations. Col. Roumfort is, in relation to the pupils, at once the master whom they reverence and esteem, and the father and friend whom they tenderly love.

Col. R. will be pleased to accept this small tribute of gratitude, for his goodness, and the kind attentions he showed me, while an inmate of his estimable and worthy family.

the English language, for which I have always had a strong predilection, and which I first studied, in 1797 and 1798, at Brown's College, Rhode Island, the knowledge of which had been much blunted by a disuse of it for twenty-nine years.

While thus occupied, continuous observation showed me, that, in order to ensure a complete course of study in the Spanish language, there was wanting a Guide, at once clear and demonstrative, which would give the pupil a practical knowledge of translating English into Spanish, the true signification and application of words, the phraseology, and the formation of a good syntax, so difficult to the student.

I certainly saw, with no small surprise, the facility with which my more advanced pupils rendered into English, the Spanish treatises and dissertations, Gil Blas, Paul and Virginia, and other works which I used in the class; while, at the same time, I witnessed, that they found the greatest difficulty and embarrassment, in translating English into Spanish, showing at every step the most glaring faults in grammar, signification, and syntax, notwithstanding the very defined and clear rules which were given.

The rapid progress of the pupils in the French class showed evidently, that, to ensure equal success in Spanish, a similar guide to that which they used, was necessary. I allude to the excellent plan of M. Bolmar,* which I adopted, and began by preparing short written exercises, after that teacher's method, which I put into my pupils' hands. The success that followed, convinced me more and more of its being the best mode of learning, in the shortest time, to translate English into Spanish.

* See the works of this meritorious teacher, entitled, Collection of One Hundred Fables, with a Key to the Pronunciation and to the Translation; a Key to the first Eight Books of Telemachus, &c.

Such was the origin of the present work, which I respectfully dedicate to the youth of the United States of America, impelled simply by the desire of advancing their progress in the knowledge of a language, daily becoming of primary importance. The proximity to the Spanish American republics—the political and commercial connections constantly forming, and rapidly extending between those countries and the United States—the new avenues to successful adventure, daily being developed to enterprising and industrious youth—sources of wealth and prosperity much more certain and abundant, than all their ventures to Europe—render a knowledge of the Spanish language almost a sine qua non in the education of youth. Among all nations, with whom are formed connections of business, of arts, or of a domestic nature, a knowledge of their language is, in a great measure, a passport to their confidence ; but more especially in the Spanish American republics. There it is absolutely necessary. Without it, the obstructions to success are insurmountable—with it, this true land of promise displays a rich field for vigorous and honourable enterprise, for the most extensive ramifications in commerce, science and arts. These facts are well known to every traveller of observation and intelligence, who has visited South America.

Unfortunately, the internal dissensions of that country, and an ignorance of the advantages offered in this immense field of competition, have prevented the Spanish language from receiving that attention which its importance demands. But the rapid establishing of order, the allaying of domestic discord, and the improving stability of the governments, now going on among those republics, claim for it a pre-eminence, so much so, that, in my opinion, a professorship of Spanish ought to be established in every college throughout the United States, and a teacher in every respectable school. A knowledge of it will oftentimes be found of more importance than the possession of a large capital, which otherwise might be much fettered, and great risks run, from the simple circumstance of not being able to communicate with the natives in their own tongue. My ardent desire for the prospective advancement of the youth of the United States, has led me into this digression; and having given my opinion, formed after a long residence among, and intimate acquaintance with, the people, I shall resume the thread of my prefatory remarks about the work.

With the view of having my work not only enriched with a variety of interesting selections of pieces written in correct English, but which would be equally illustrative of the phraseological distinctions of both languages, I have made my extracts from as great a number of works, as the size of the volume would allow. Should the book be so fortunate as to meet the approbation of those for whom it was written, and of the public generally, it is my intention to add another volume, that will contain materials and other means of translating, which it was impossible to present in a volume of this size; flattering myself, that when the second is completed, the whole will form a complete course of examples, amply supplying the knowledge necessary for translating correctly Spanish into English, and vice versa.

THE AUTHOR.

PRELIMINARY REMARKS.

In this work the modern orthography is used, which has been adopted in Spain, and in the other nations where the Spanish language is spoken.

The new rules, or rather, the orthographical alterations, are the following :

First.—In all words where G and X have hard guttural sounds, J has been substituted in their place—as, for General, we write Jeneral—for Género, Jénero—for Xímio, Jímio—Xárcia, Járcia—Xabon, Jabon—Xarabe, Jarabe, &c. retaining the use of G only for the light guttural sounds, as in Gusano, Gamo, Gloria, &c.

Second.—In the pronunciation of x in the middle of a word, the following rules are to be observed :

In words with x followed by a vowel, we give the sound of cs, and adopt these letters in lieu of it; as, for Examen, Ecsamen—Exaltacion, Ecsaltacion, &c.

In words with x followed by a consonant, we give the sound of s, and use this letter in its place—as, for Exclamacion, Esclamacion—Expiacion, Espiacion—Texto, Testo, &c.

Third.—The h between two vowels, when considered merely as a simple aspiration, is always suppressed: we now write for Ahora, Aóra—for Ahogar, Aôgar—Rehin.

chimiento, Reinchimiento—Rehen, Réen—Rehusar, Reusar—Ahorrar, Aórrar, &c.

The rules of the new orthography are not to be found in any dictionaries extant: and, therefore, the scholar must look for the words under the old spelling; but in writing them, he will simplify his orthography by the above prescribed rules—and will thus avoid much confusion and false spelling—save many letters in writing—and at the same time it will follow, that the sounds of the words will be distinct and perceptible;—thus at once giving a beauty and affording a facility in writing the language with propriety, even to foreigners, while engaged in learning it.

An asterisk used at the end of a word in English, as, *he,** denotes, that it is not to be translated in Spanish, to preserve the proper syntax.

An asterisk at the end of a word in Spanish; as, *él**, denotes, that it is to be omitted or supplied, for the preceding reasons.

An asterisk at the end of a word or phrase in English, and another at the Spanish, denotes, that the word or phrase is not to be found in the dictionaries with the signification exactly required by the sense of the phrase, and which has been thus supplied; as, *now,* aora* que**, being translated in the preterite, renders it indispensable to say *entonces**, to preserve the syntax.

When asterisks are placed at the beginning and end of a phrase or sentence, and also after the different words which compose it in English, and continued in the Spanish translation ; as, *his* knuckle**, *las* coyunturas* de los dedos de la mano**, denotes, that the phrase, word, or sentence, cannot be translated literally in Spanish, without committing a striking solecism, and which, for this reason, has been freely rendered by equivalent words, so as to denote nearly the meaning of said phrase, &c.

Persons even partially acquainted with foreign languages are aware, that in all there are certain words and phrases peculiar to them, that cannot be translated literally into others—therefore, the free translation has been mutually given—a quid pro quo of their respective meanings.

Explanation of the Numbers over the words.

With the view of exhibiting the syntax in the Spanish translation, figures have been placed over the words in the sentence ; indicating to the pupils, by their order, 1, 2, 3, &c. the government and syntax.

Plain Rules for using the verbs ESTAR and SER.

In learning Spanish, the English find great difficulty in understanding the proper use of these two verbs ; but we believe that the following explanation will be found sufficient to instruct the learner how to apply them properly.

Ser is used to denote the active action of things animate and inanimate, as, Pedro es bueno, Peter is good—La fru-ta es mala, the fruit is bad—La ciudad es hermosa, the town is handsome, &c.

Estar, is used to denote the passive action of things animate and inanimate; as, Pedro está malo, Peter is sick—La fruta está podrida, the fruit is rotten—La ciudad está sucia, the town is dirty, &c.

Geografía—Geography.

P. ¿Que es Geografia ?

Q. What is Geography ?

R. Una descripcion de la tierra.

A. A description of the earth.

P. ¿Cuantas millas tiene la tierra en diámetro?

Q. How many miles is the earth in diameter ?

R. Cerca de ocho mil.

A. About eight thousand.

P. ¿Que quiere decirse por el diámetro de tierra ?

Q. What is meant by the diameter of the earth ?

R. La distancia desde un lado á otro por medio del centro.

A. The distance from one side to the other through the centre.

P. ¿Cuantas millas tiene la tierra en circunferencia ?

Q. How many miles is the earth in circumference ?

R. Cerca de veinte y cinco mil.

A. Nearly twenty-five thousand miles.

P. ¿Como se sabe que la tierra es redonda ?

Q. How is it known that the earth is round ?

R. Porque cuando un buque se acerca à la playa, la parte de él que se ve primeramente son los toques de los palos : si la superficie del océano fuese plana, veriamos el casco primeramente, porque es la parte mayor del buque. Otra prueba de esto es, que ha sido navegada al rededor.

A. Because, when a vessel approaches the shore, the first of it that is seen are the tops of the masts; if the surface of the ocean were level, we should see the hull first, because it is the largest part of the vessel. Another proof of it is, that it has been sailed round.

P. ¿En que tiempo da vuelta la tierra al rededor del sol?

Q. In what time does the earth turn round the sun ?

R. En un año.

A. In a year.

P. ¿Cuantas veces da vuelta sobre su propio éje ?

Q. How many times does it turn upon its own axis ?

R. Una vez en veinte y cuatro horas.

A. Once in twenty-four hours.

P. ¿Que llama Vmd. el éje de la tierra ?

Q. What do you call the axis of the earth ?

R. Una línea que pasa por dentro de su centrò.

A. A line that passes through its centre.

P. ¿Que distancia hace la tierra diariamente al rededor del sol ?

Q. What distance does the earth go daily around the sun ?

R. Un millon quinientas mil millas.

A. One million five hundred thousand miles.

P. ¿C cuanto tiempo se necesataría para viajar sobre cada milla cuadrada de la superficie de la tierra, á razon de treinta millas diarias ?

Q. What time would be required to travel over every square mile of the surface of the earth at the rate of thirty miles each day ?

R. Diez y ocho mil años.

A. Eighteen thousand years.

P. ¿Que porcion de la superficie de la tierra está cubierta de agua ?

Q. What portion of the surface of the earth is covered with water ?

R. Mas de las dos tercias partes de ella.

A. More than two thirds of it.

P. ¿Que es una montaña ?

Q. What is a mountain ?

R. Una porcion de tierra elevada á una grande altura.

A. A portion of land elevated to a great height.

P. ¿Cual es la elevacion de las mas altas montañas del mundo ?

Q. What is the elevation of the highest mountains of the world ?

R. De cinco millas en su altura.

A. Of five miles in height.

P. ¿Cual es, probablemente, la mayor profundidad del mar ?

Q. What is probably the greatest depth of the sea ?

R. Casi en proporcion con la elevacion de la tierra.

A. About in proportion to the elevation of the land.

P. Si el océano se secase completamente, ¿cuanto tiempo se ha considerado que los rios que vácian en él tardarían en llenarlo ?

Q. If the ocean were completely emptied, how long has it been supposed the rivers which flow into it would be in filling it?

R. Mas de veinte mil años.

A. More than twenty thousand years.

P. ¿En cuantas partes puede dividirse una gota de agua?

A. Into how many parts may a drop of water be divided?

R. En muchos millones.

Q. Into many millions.

P. ¿Cuántas habitantes contiene la tierra?

Q. How many inhabitants does the earth contain?

R. Ochocientos millones.

A. Eight hundred millions.

P. ¿Cuántos personas mueren cada año, y cuántas cada minuto?

Q. How many persons die every year, and how many every minute?

R. Veinte y cinco millones cada año; y cuarenta y siete cada minuto.

A. Twenty-five millions every year, and forty-seven every minute.

LECCION PRIMERA.

Máximas.

Resuelvete á ser algo, y algo serás.

No puedo, nunca realizó nada; veré si puedo, obró maravillas.

Los hombres se arrepienten diez veces de haber hablado, por una he haber guardado silencio.

Es mejor reflexionar por una hora, que haberse de arrepentir por un año.

Ninguna cosa será de valor para ti, si haces mal uso de ella.

Para aprender á hablar bien, aprende primero á oír.

Devolver bien por mal, es asemejarse á Dios.—Devolver bien por bien, es de hombres.—Devolver mal por mal, es asemejarse á las bestias—y devolver mal por bien, es asemejarse al Diablo.

Ama á tu prójimo aunque sea vicioso. Aborrece el vicio aun en el amigo que mas estimes.

Responde con pausa á una pregunta precipitada.

El que habla mal de otros, quema su propia lengua.

Preguntado un filósofo por que medios habia adquirido tanto saber, respondió—Porque nunca me impidió la vanidad el hacer preguntas acerca de lo que yo ignoraba.

Lo menos que duerma el hombre, eso mas vive.

Mi palacio y mis oídos, decia Hiero Rey de Siracusa, estan siempre abiertos para aquellos que me habláren en el idioma de la verdad, sin disfraz, y en el tono de la franqueza.

La sinceridad se parece al viajar por un camino llano y aplanado, el que regularmente conduce al hombre con mas prontitud al fin de su jornada; que no por caminos escusados, en los cuales se pierden los hombres amenudo.

FIRST LESSON.

Maxims.

Determine that you shall be something, and you will be something.

I cannot do it, never accomplished any thing; I will try, has wrought wonders.

Men repent speaking ten times, for once that they repent keeping silence.

Better consider for an hour, than repent for a year.

Nothing will be of any value to you, that you make a bad use of.

To learn to talk well, first learn to hear.

To render good for evil is god-like. To render good for good is man-like. To render evil for evil is beast-like, and to render evil for good is devil-like.

Love your fellow creature, though vicious. Hate vice in the friend you love the most.

Make a slow answer to a hasty question.

He that speaks ill of other men, burns his own tongue.

A philosopher being asked by what means he had acquired so much knowledge, replied—"By not being prevented by pride from asking questions when I was ignorant."

The less a man sleeps, the more he lives.

My palace and my ears, said Hiero, king of Syracuse, are always open to those who will speak to me in the language of truth, without disguise, and in the tone of frankness.

Sincerity is like travelling in a plain beaten road, which commonly brings a man sooner to his journey's end, than by ways, in which men often lose themselves.

LECCION SEGUNDA.

Xenócrates fué un hombre de tanta verdad y fidelidad, que los Atenienses le concedieron á él solo, el privilegio de que su testimonio fuese legal sin juramento. Y se decia de Fabricio, que podria un hombre intentar mas bien el hacer que el Sol alterase su curso, que obligarle á que dijese una falsedad, ó á que cometiese una accion baja ó desonesta.

---

La verdad, segun las palabras de La Bruyere, es el Sol de intelijencia; y en las manos del débil y sencillo, desvaramenta frecuentemente los proyectos ó desarma la ira del poderoso y entendido. Una mentira, necesita de mil mas para sostenerla. Una sola verdad, subsiste firmemente sin auxilio; y eso, aunque los labios que la pronunciaren sean los de un trabajador, los del príncipe, los del niño de la escuela, ó los del sabio.

LECCION TERCERA.

Cada virtud proporciona al hombre, en algun modo, un grado de felicidad. La honradez, le proporciona buena fama: la justicia, estimacion: la prudencia, respeto: la cortesía y liberalidad, aficion; la templanza le da salud; y la fortaleza, un espiritu tranquilo é inmutable por adversidad alguna.

Cuando invitaron á Numa á la soberanía, dice Dion, que lo reusó por algun tiempo, y que persistió siempre en no aceptar la oferta. Pero á las instancias ecsijentes de sus hermanos, y últimamente de su padre, quienes no podian tolerar que depreciase una oferta de tan grande honor, condescendió en ser Rey. Luego que se informaron los

SECOND LESSON.

Xenocrates was a man of that truth and fidelity, that the Athenians gave him alone the privilege, that his evidence should be lawful without swearing. And it was said of Fabricius, that a man might as well attempt to turn the sun out of its course, as to make him tell a falsehood, or do a base or dishonest action.

Truth, in the words of La Bruyere, is the sun of intelligence; and in the hands of the weak and simple, frequently defeats the plans or disarms the anger of the powerful and learned. One lie requires a thousand to support it. A single truth stands firmly without assistance; and that, whether the lips which utter it, are those of the peasant or the prince, the school-boy or the sage.

THIRD LESSON.

Every virtue gives a man a degree of felicity of some kind. Honesty gives good report; justice, estimation: prudence, respect; courtesy and liberality, affection; temperance gives health; and fortitude, a quiet mind not to be moved by any adversity.

When they invited Numa, says Dion, to the sovereignty, he for some time refused it, and persisted long in his resolution not to accept the invitation. But at the pressing instance of his brothers and at last of his father, who would not suffer him to reject the offer of so great an honour, he condescended to be a king. As soon as the Romans were Cuando se acercó á la ciudad le salieron á recibir al camino, y con grande aplauso, enhorabuenas y otros honores lo condujeron á Roma.*

LECCION CUARTA.

*Julio Druso, un tribuno del pueblo, vivía en un paraje mui público de Roma; y sus vecinos, sin dificultad alguna, podian ver lo que se pasaba en la mayor parte de las viviendas de la casa. Un dia, un artesano de mucho conocimiento, lo fué á ver y le dijo: que por cinco talentos, alteraría la casa de tal modo, que la pondria en la imposibilidad de que, aun el ojo mas avizor pudiese ver nada en parte alguna de ella. Yo daria á usted diez talentos, dijo Druso: si usted la pudiese disponer de tal modo, que cada habitacion y cada rincon pudiesen estar francos á la inspeccion pública. Yo quiero mejor que mis vecinos sepan, que mis acciones estan fuera de toda sospecha, observandolas ellos mismos, que no, el que* les* conste por el dicho comun de las jentes.*

informed of all this by the ambassadors, they conceived a great affection for him, before they had seen him; esteeming as a sufficient argument of his wisdom, that while others valued royalty beyond measure, looking upon it as the source of happiness, he alone despised it, as a thing of small value, and unworthy of his attention. When he approached the city, they met him on the road, and with great applause, salutations and other honours, conducted him to Rome.

LESSON FOURTH.

Julius Drusus, a tribune of the people, lived in a very public part of Rome; and his neighbours, without any difficulty, might see what was going forward in most of the apartments of his house. One day a workman of much skill came to him, and said, that for five talents he would alter the house in such a manner as to make it impossible for the most prying eye to look into any part of it. I would give you ten talents, said Drusus, if you could so arrange it, that every room and corner might be open to public inspection. I had rather my neighbours might know that my actions were above suspicion, from their own observation, than from common report.

LECCION QUINTA.

Pigalle, el célebre artista, fué un hombre de grande caridad. Intentando, en cierta ocasion, hacer un viaje de Leon á Paris, puso aparte doce luises de oro para subvenir á sus gastos. Pero poco antes del proyectado tiempo de su partida, observó á un hombre que caminaba con señales evidentes de una grande pesadumbre, tanto por su semblante, como por su porte.

Impelido Pigalle por los sentimientos de un corazon compasivo, le dirijió la palabra é inquirió con mucha afabilidad, si podria prestarle algun alivio. Impresionado el extranjero del amistoso cumplimiento; no se detuvo en manifestarle su triste situacion.

“ Por falta de diez luises de oro, dijo, debo ser arrastrado esta tarde á un calabozo y estar separado de una tierna esposa y de una numerosa familia.” ¿No necesitais de mas? exclamó el piadoso artista. Venid, pues, conmigo; yo tengo en mi baul doce luises de oro y estan á vuestra disposicion.

Al dia siguiente, un amigo de Pigalle le encontró y le preguntó si era cierto, que habia, segun públicamente se decia, libertado mui oportunamente, á un pobre hombre y á su familia, de la mayor afliccion. “¡Ah amigo mio!” dijo Pigalle, “ Que deliciosa cena de pan y queso tuve anoche con una familia, cuyas lágrimas de gratitud demostraban la bondad de sus corazones, y que me bendecian á cada bocado que comian.”

FIFTH LESSON.

Pigalle, the celebrated artist, was a man of great humanity. Intending on a particular occasion, to make a journey from Lyons to Paris, he laid by twelve louis d'ors to defray his expenses. But a little before the time proposed for his setting out, he observed a man walking with strong marks of deep-felt sorrow in his countenance and deportment.

Pigalle, impelled by the feelings of a benevolent heart, accosted him, and inquired with much tenderness, whether it was in his power to afford him any relief. The stranger, impressed with the manner of this friendly address, did not hesitate to lay open his distressed situation.

"For want of ten louis d'ors," said he, "I must be dragged this evening to a dungeon; and be separated from a tender wife and a numerous family." "Do you want no more?" exclaimed the humane artist. "Come along with me; I have twelve louis d'ors in my trunk; and they are all at your service."

The next day a friend of Pigalle met him; and inquired whether it was true, that he had, as was publicly reported, very opportunely relieved a poor man and his family from the greatest distress. "Ah, my friend," said Pigalle, "what a delicious supper did I make last night upon bread and cheese, with a family whose tears of gratitude marked the goodness of their hearts; and who blessed me at every mouthful they ate!"

LECCION SECSTA.

El Sultan Mahmoud era mui feo de persona y parecer; y un dia en que su gran Visir le preguntó porque se hallaba tan triste y melancólico, le contestó el Monarca. “ He oido siempre decir, que la cara de un principe debe inspirar júbilo en sus vasallos; y estoy sorprendido de que siendo la mia tan fea, no disguste á los mios el verla. Señor, replicó el ministro; la entidad de un ser racional no consiste ni en la regularidad de sus facciones ni en la siemetría de su cuerpo. La virtud y las cualidades del entendimiento, son los verdaderos manantiales de la hermosura. Entre vuestros numerosos vasallos, no hay ni uno, que repare ó haga observaciones acerca de vuestras facciones; pero vuestras costumbres y vuestras virtudes se notan por todos ellos. Y, por medio de ellas, ganareis sus corazones y sereis el objeto de su amor.

---

Cuando las crueldades de Neron, el tirano de Roma, y el oprobio de la naturaleza humana, lo hicieron aborrecible á todas las clases de sus vasallos; se formó una conjuracion para destruirlo y elevar á Pison, hombre de gran mérito y popularidad, á la dignidad de Emperador. La virtud sublime de Pison, fué la causa del trastorno del complot y la de su propia destruccion. Neron tenia por invariable costumbre el visitar una casa de campo perteneciente á Pison, sin su acostumbrado séquito de guardias y acompañado solamente por unos pocos cortesanos, y, á ocasiones, in their little throats to welcome her coming; and when they see her, they begin to choose their mates, and to build their nests. Youths and maidens, have you seen this beautiful virgin? Who is she? What is her name?

End of the fifth Lesson.

LESSON SIXTH.

The Sultan Mahmud was very ugly in his personal appearance; and one day, when his grand vizier spoke to him of his extreme sadness and melancholy, the monarch answered: "I have always heard, that the countenance of a prince should impart joy to his subjects, and I am surprised that mine, which is so deformed, does not disgust their sight." "Sire," replied the minister, "the worth of a human being does not consist in the regularity of his features, or the symmetry of his form. Virtue and the qualities of the mind are the true sources of beauty. Among your numerous subjects, there is not one, who remarks upon, or observes your features: but your manners and your virtues are noticed by all of them. It is with these that you should gain their hearts, and become the object of their affection."

When the cruelties of Nero, the tyrant of Rome, and the disgrace of human nature, had rendered him odious to all classes of his subjects, a conspiracy was formed to destroy him, and elevate Piso, a man of great worth and popularity, to the station of emperor. The sublime virtue of Piso was the cause of the failure of the plot, and of his own destruction. Nero was constantly in the habit of visiting a country seat, belonging to Piso, without his usual train of guards, attended only by a few courtiers, and sometimes even alone. On one of these visits, it was proposed that he should be hasta solo. Se habia determinado el que en una de estas visitas fuese asesinado, lo que no hubiera sido de difícil ejecucion. Pero Pison no quiso permitir á los conspiradores el que realizasen sus planes. “Neron,” dijo, “me visita con completa confianza; descansa en mi buena fé y lealtad; acaso soy yo solo, el único de sus vasallos de quien se fia; y sin embargo de que me úno á vosotros en reputarlo como el tirano de mi patria; la misma corona y todos los honores que acompañan su posesion, no me tentarian á violar las leyes de la hospitalidad ni á hacer ilusória la confianza que se ha puesta en mí. Si quisiesséis destruir á Neron, buscad otro punto, y haced uso de otro agente.” Los conspiradores fueron subsecuentemente descubiertos, y la muerte fué el premio de la integridad y de la virtud de Pison.

LECCION SEPTIMA.

El Aguila y la Zorra.

Buscando un Aguila, que tenia pollos, algo conque alimentarlos, atisbó por casualidad á un Zorríto calentandose, afuera, al sol. El Aguila se tiró á él y lo agarró inmediatamente; pero antes de tenerlo arriba, la vieja Zorra que volvia á su madriguera imploró de ella con lágrimas en sus ojos, que la diese su cachorro y compadeciese la angustia de una amante madre, que creía no haber desventura mayor que la pérdida de su hijo. El Aguila, cuya nido estaba sobre un alto árbol, se consideró bastantemente segura contra los proyectos de la venganza, y así llevó el cachorro á sus hijos, sin hacer caso de las súplicas de la Zorra. Pero aquel astuto animal, estremadamente irritada con tan maligna barbaridad, corrió á un altar en donde algunas assassinated, which would not have been at all difficult of execution. But Piso refused to permit the conspirators to carry their plans into execution. "Nero," he said, "visits me in perfect confidence; he relies on my good faith and loyalty; I am perhaps the only one of his subjects that he trusts; and although I join you in considering him the tyrant of my country, the crown itself, and all the honours that accompany its possession, shall not tempt me to violate the laws of hospitality, or break the confidence which is reposed in me. If you would destroy Nero, seek another spot, and make use of another agent." The conspirators were subsequently discovered, and death became the reward of Piso's integrity and virtue.

SEVENTH LESSON.

The Eagle and the Fox.

An eagle that had young ones, looking out for something to feed them with, happened to spy a fox's cub, that lay basking itself abroad in the sun. She made a stoop, and trussed it immediately; but before she had carried it quite off, the old fox coming home, implored her, with tears in her eyes, to spare her cub, and pity the distress of a poor fond mother, who should think no affliction so great as that of losing her child. The eagle, whose nest was up in a very high tree, thought herself secure enough from all projects of revenge, and so bore away the cub to her young ones, without showing any regard to the supplications of the fox. But that subtle creature, highly incensed at this outrageous barbarity, ran to an altar, where some country jentes del campo habian estado sacrificando un cabrito, en un prado abierto, y cojiendo de él un tizon encendido en la boca, se fué ácia el árbol en donde estaba el nido del Aguila, con resolucion de vengarse de ella. Apenas habia trepado las primeras ramas, cuando aterrada el Aguila con su procsima destruccion y la de su familia, suplicó á la Zorra que desistiese (de su intento), y con mucha sumision la devolvió otra vez el cachorro sano y salvo.

☞ Esta fábula enseña al poderoso, al soberbio y al que ocupa un puesto elevado, el no hacer daño ni perjudicar al desgraciado ó débil; porque debe temerse la venganza aún del enemigo mas insignificante; y acaso puede tener efecto, en el momento de su mayor encumbramiento y soberbia.

El Perro y la Sombra.

Cruzando un Perro un pequeño riachuelo, con un pedazo de carne en la boca, vió su sombra representada en el claro espejo de la cristalina corriente, y creyéndola ser otro Perro que llevaba otro pedazo de carne, no pudo abstenerse de cojerla: pero estuvo tan distante de conseguir algo con su ambicioso designio, que dejó caer el pedazo que tenia en la boca, el que inmediatamente se fué á fondo, y se perdió para siempre.

☞ Aquel que coje mas de lo que le pertenece, merece justamente perderlo que posée.

LECCION OCTAVA.

Jupiter y el Camello.

El Camello le presentó á Jupiter un memorial, quejándose de la desgracia de su situacion por no tener, como los toros people had been sacrificing a kid in the open fields, and catching up a firebrand in her mouth, made towards the tree where the eagle's nest was, with a resolution of revenge. She had scarce ascended the first branches, when the eagle, terrified with the approaching ruin of herself and family, begged of the fox to desist, and, with much submission, returned her the cub again safe and sound.

☞ This fable teaches the powerful and proud, and him who occupies an elevated station, not to harm or prejudice the unhappy or weak; because vengeance is to be dreaded even from the most insignificant enemy, and perhaps may take effect in the moment of their greatest elevation and pride.

The Dog and the Shadow.

A dog, crossing a little rivulet with a piece of flesh in his mouth, saw his shadow represented in the clear mirror of the limpid stream; and believing it to be another dog, who was carrying another piece of flesh, could not forbear catching at it; but was so far from getting any thing by his greedy design that he dropt the piece he had in his mouth, which immediately sunk to the bottom, and was irrecoverably lost.

☞ He that catches at more than belongs to him, justly deserves to lose what he has.

End of the seventh Lesson.

EIGHTH LESSON.

Jupiter and the Camel.

The camel presented a petition to Jupiter, complaining of the hardship of his case, in not having like bulls and y otros animales, cuernos ú otras armas defensivas, conque protegerse de los ataques de sus enemigos; y rogándole que le concediese algun consuelo en el modo que (el* Dios*) creyese mas conveniente. Jupiter no pudo menos que sonreirse con la impertinente peticion de la simplisima gran bestia; pero sin embargo, desechó su súplica y le dijo: que, lejos de acceder á su descabellada pretencion, cuidaria que de alli en adelante se le acortasen las orejas, en castigo de su presuntuosa importunidad.

☞ La moral de esta fábula nos enseña, que muchos ambiciosos, que piden á Dios mas de lo que tienen; suelen perder, por su codicioso, deseo una parte de lo que poseían.

El Cuervo y la Serpiente.

Un hambriento Cuervo, que voltejaba en busca de su presa; vió á una Serpiente calentandose sobre la ladera de un ribazo en que daba el sol; dejóse caer rápidamente sobre ella y la asió con su encorvado pico para devorarla; pero retorciendose la Serpiente de un lado á otro con el dolor, (que* sufría*) mordió en desquite, al Cuervo con sus ponzoñosos dientes, de tal modo, que no pudo sobrevivir á la mordida* (it*). Se dice, que el Cuervo confesó en las agonías de la muerte, que era justamente acreedor á este castigo del cielo, por haber intentado saciar su desordenado apetito, á costa del bien estar de otro.

☞ A aquellos que son de un carácter voraz y ambicioso, y que se tragan cuanto les viene al paso, puede acaecerles el encontrarse, al fin, con un aguijon que* los* destruya.*

LECCION NOVENA.

Habiendo visitado á Efeso, Antigono, Rey de Macedonia, fué al templo de Diana pura disfrutar de las cere-other creatures, horns or any weapons of defence to protect himself from the attacks of his enemies; and praying that relief might be given him in such a manner as might be thought most expedient. Jupiter could not help smiling at the impertinent address of the great silly beast; but, however, rejected the petition, and told him, that, so far from granting his unreasonable request, henceforward he would take care his ears should be shortened, as a punishment of his presumptuous importunity.

☞ The moral of this fable teaches us that many ambitious persons who ask of God more than they have, usually lose through their covetous desires a part of that which they possess.

The Raven and the Serpent.

A hungry raven, flying about in quest of his prey, saw a serpent basking himself upon the side of a sunny bank: down he soused upon him, and seized him with his crooked beak, in order to devour him: but the serpent writhing to and fro with the pain, bit the raven again with his venomous teeth, to such a degree that he could not survive it. The raven in the agonies of death, is said to have confessed that this judgment happened to him justly: since he had attempted to satisfy his craving appetite at the expense of another's welfare.

☞ They who are of a ravenous greedy temper, and for swallowing all that comes into their way, may chance to meet with a sting in the end.

End of the eighth Lesson.

NINTH LESSON.

Antigonus, king of Macedon, having visited Ephesus, went to the temple of Diana to partake of the ceremonies monias que en él se celebraban en honor de la divinidad del arco de plata. Cuando pasó la larga procesion de las sacerdotizas por delante de él, fué sorprendido con la grandísima hermosura de aquella que precidia sobre las demas. La principal sacerdotiza de Diana, fué la causa de que su corazon se penetrase de una emocion que jamas habia sentido; y por un momento le ocurrió á su imaginacion la idea de hacerla suya por la violencia. Pero otra reflexion fué bastante para disipar las impías intenciones que se habian escitado dentro de él; y saliéndose del templo llamó á* los que* le servian* y partió de Efeso, temeroso de que la proximad del objeto pudiese tentarlo á la perpetracion de un crimen tan vergonzoso á su virtud, como á su jenerosidad.

Constantino el grande, despues de su largo y glorioso reinado, de* sus numerosas batallas y de* sus repetidos triunfos, cayó* alfin* enfermo*, y la mano de la muerte descansaba sobre él pesadamente. En tal situacion, mandó llamar á los principales oficiales de su ejército. Vinieron y se situaron al rededor de su cama bañados de lágrimas; deplorando la perdida que iba á constituirlos, como así seria, huérfanos sin padre, y fervorosos en sus oraciones, pedian* al cielo*, que prolongase la vida del Emperador.” “No lloreis, amigos mios,” dijo este*, la vida en que pronto entraré, es vida verdadera. Sé mui bien las felicidades que se me esperan en el otro mundo. No lloreis, pues* camino* con presteza* ácia mi Dios.

LECCION DECIMA.

Hay algunas personas que pretenden créer, que el dar gracias á la Divinidad por su cuidado y proteccion de la vida efectiva que disfrutan, es indecoroso; asunto de mujeres performed there in honour of the deity of the silver bow. As the long procession of priestesses passed before him, he was struck with the magnificent beauty of her who presided over them. The chief priestess of Diana caused his heart to thrill with an emotion, which it had never before experienced; and for a moment, the idea of making her his own by violence passed across his mind. But another thought was sufficient to overcome the unholy feeling, which had been roused within him; and leaving the temple, he summoned his* attendants*, and departed from Ephesus; fearing lest the neighbourhood of the object might tempt him to the commission of a crime, alike disgraceful to his virtue as his generosity.

Constantine the great, after his long and glorious reign, his numerous battles and repeated triumphs, was* at last overtaken* by sickness*, and the hand of death lay heavy upon him. In this condition he sent for all the principal officers of his army. They came and stood around his bed bathed in tears, deploring the loss which would make them, as it were, orphans without a father, and fervent in their prayers that the life of the emperor might be prolonged. "Weep not, my friends," he said, "the life I am soon to enter, is the true life. I know full well the happiness that awaits me in another world. Weep not, for* I am* hastening* to my God."

TENTH LESSON.

There are some persons who pretend to believe, that to thank the Deity, for his care and protection of the very life which they enjoy, is unbecoming, womanish, and fit only solamente*, y propio de los viejos y enfermos. Ellos serian religiosos, si la religion fuese de moda; olvidandose de que Aquel, que debe ser adorado con una gratitud reverente, valúa la esencia y no la forma del culto que recibe. El ejemplo de una persona de alta jerarquía y célebre en la historia, acaso no déjará de producir su efecto. Cuando Gustavo Adolfo, de Suecia, estuvo acampado delante de Werben, uno de sus criados encargado de un mensaje de importancia, esperó por largo tiempo en la division anterior de la tienda, del* Monarca*, receloso de interrumpir al Rey, que estaba solo, en la parte interior ó gabinete. Persuadido, empero, de que el asunto de que estaba encargado, no admitia demora, se aventuró al fin, á descorrer la cortina que lo separaba de Gustavo. Para sorpresa suya, en lugar de hallar al Rey ocupado con despachos, lo vió arrodillado y arrobado, al parecer, en la oracion mas sincera. La bulla que causó la descorrida de la lona atrajo la atencion de Gustavo, quien pereiviendo que su criado estaba á punto de retirarse, le dijo que entrase; y observando de que estaba sorprendido con lo que habia descubierto, acerca de la devocion del Monarca, este* le dijo, “ Te admiras de verme en esta actitud desde que tengo tantos subditos que oren por mí; pero te digo, que ningun hombre tiene tanta necesidad de orar por sí, como aquel, que debiendo dar cuenta de sus acciones, solamente á Dios, es<sup>1</sup>, por<sup>3</sup> esta razon, atacado<sup>2</sup> mas<sup>4</sup> de<sup>4</sup> cerca<sup>4</sup> por<sup>5</sup> el diablo<sup>5</sup>, que<sup>5</sup> otro<sup>5</sup> alguno<sup>7</sup> de los* hombres<sup>6</sup>.

LECCION UNDECIMA.

Cuando Tarquino fué desterrado de Roma, Bruto y Colatino fueron hechos Consules por el púeblo; y juraron que los Tarquinos jamas serian vueltos á llamar, y que la muerte for the aged and infirm. They would be religious, were religion fashionable; forgetting that He, who is to be propitiated by a pious gratitude, values the essence, and not the form, of the worship which he receives. The example of one high in rank, and celebrated in history, may not, perhaps, be without effect. When Gustavus Adolphus was encamped before Werben, one of his attendants, entrusted with a message of great importance, waited for a long time in the outer compartment of his tent, afraid to disturb the king, who was alone in the inner chamber or cabinet. Sensible, however, that the matter, with which he was charged, admitted of no delay, he at last ventured to remove the curtain, which separated him from Gustavus. To his surprise, instead of finding the king engaged with despatches, he saw him on his knees, apparently absorbed in the most earnest prayer. The noise made by the rustling of the canvass attracted the attention of Gustavus, who, perceiving that his attendant was about to retire, told him to enter: and, observing that he was surprised at what he had discovered of the devotion of the monarch, said to him, "Thou wonderest to see me in this posture, since I have so many thousands of subjects to pray for me: but I tell thee, that no man has more need to pray for himself, than he, who having to render an account of his actions to God alone, is, for that reason, more closely assaulted by the devil, than all other men."

ELEVENTH LESSON.

When Tarquin was banished from Rome, Brutus and Collatinus were made consuls by the people; and swore that the Tarquins should never be recalled, and that death seria el castigo de aquellos que intentasen la restauracion de la Monarquía. Sin embargo, no bien habia pasado un año despues de la espulsion del tirano, cuando fué descubierta una conjuracion entre los jóvenes de Roma para reinstalar al destronado Monarca y destruir la república nuevamente formada. Entre los principales conspiradores se hallaban los dos hijos del Consul Bruto. En la mañana del dia despues del en que habian sido presos la conspiradores, fueron estos* conducidos á la presencia de Bruto, quien desempeñaba entonces la* judicatura*. Las pruebas, que consistian de cartas escritas de su puño y letra, declarando sus intenciones y nombrando sus complices, fueron presentadas y no dejaron duda alguna* de su delito. Hasta entonces, los espectadores congregados habian confiado en que alguna falta, legal*, ó alguna duda en las declaraciones libertarian al padre, del cruel deber que habia recaído sobre él; pero* cuando toda la esperanza de ello se hubo disipado, el grito de “Destierro, Destierro,” que resonó en la* multitud, demostró su voluntad de que Bruto pudiese libertarse de condenar á sus propios hijos. Los sentimientos del aflijido padre pugnaban con violencia contra el desempeño de la melancólica obligacion que debia á la república; pero la justicia y el patriotismo prevalecieron al fin, y con un semblante no demudado, mandó á sus hijos al suplicio, entre los lamentos y lágrimas de los Romanos que le circundaban. Otros reos de alta jerarquía jóvenes y de popularidad, sufrieron al mismo tiempo, el castigo*, con los hijos de Bruto y por igual crimen; pero apenas se advirtió su muerte: tan absortos se quedaron los espectadores con la inecorable justicia de su Consul.

should be the penalty of those who attempted the restoration of monarchy. A year, however, had scarcely elapsed after the expulsion of the tyrant, when a conspiracy was discovered, among the young men of Rome, to reinstate the dethroned monarch and destroy the newly formed republic. Among the chief conspirators were the two sons of Brutus, the consul. On the morning after the conspirators were seized, they were brought before Brutus, then seated in judgment. The proofs, consisting of letters in their own hand writing, declaring their intentions and naming their accomplices, were then exhibited, and left no doubt of their guilt. Until then, the surrounding spectators had hoped, that some deficiency, some doubt even in the testimony, would free the father from the dreadful duty which devolved upon him; and now, when all hope of this had vanished, the cry of "banishment, banishment," which rung from the multitude, showed their wish, that Brutus might be saved from the condemnation of his own sons. The feelings of the stern father struggled, with violence, against the performance of the sad duty which he owed to the republic; but justice and patriotism at last prevailed: and with an unmoved countenance, he ordered the young men to execution, amid the groans and tears of the surrounding Romans. Other culprits, high in rank, and young and popular, suffered at the same time, and for the same offence with the sons of Brutus: but their death was almost unnoticed, so absorbed were the spectators in the contemplation of the inexorable justice of their consul.

LECCION PRIMERA.

*Con respecto á mi pobreza, el Rey está debidamente informado de ella. Todos mis bienes consisten en una casa de mezquina apariencia, y en un pequeño paño de tierra del que derivó mi susistencia con mi trabajo personal. Pero, si de modo alguna has podido persuadirte ó pensar, que esta pobreza me constituye de menos valer en mi patria, ó en manera alguna desdichado, estás muy engañado. No tengo razon alguna para quejarme de la fortuna, ella me provee de todo lo que requiere la naturaleza; y si no tengo riquezas, tambien estoy libre del deseo de poseérlas. Con ellas, confieso que podría auxiliar mejor á los necesitados, única ventaja porque los ricos deben ser envidiados; pero asi tan pequeñas como son mis posesiones, aun puedo contribuir con algo para el sostenimiento del Estado, y para el socorro de mis amigos. Con respecto á honores, mi patria me pone siempre, asi pobre como soy, sobre el nivel del mas rico; porque Roma no conoce otras cualificaciones para los grandes empleos sino la virtud y la capacidad. Ella me elije para officiar en las mas augustas ceremonias de la religion: ella me confia el mando de sus ejércitos y* ella pone á mi cuidado las mas importantes negociaciones. Mi pobreza no disminuye ni* el peso ni* la influencia de mis consejos en el Senado. El pueblo Romano me honra por esa misma pobreza que el Rey Pirro considera como un oprobio. Los* Romanos* no ignoran las infinitas oportunidades que he tenido de enriquecerme sin que se me censurase; estan convencidos de mi celo desinteresado por su prosperidad; y si algo tengo de que quejarme acerca de la retribucion que me hacen, es solamente del exceso de su aplauso. ¿Que valor pues, podré yo dar á tu oro y á* tu plata? ¿Que Rey puede agregar algo* mas* á mi fortuna? Siempre atento al desempeño de los deberes de mi* incumbencia, poseo* una imaginacion esenta de baldonarme, y disfruto* de una fama honrosa.*

FIRST LESSON.

With regard to my poverty, the king has been justly informed. My whole estate consists in a house of but mean appearance, and a little spot of ground; from which, by my own labour, I draw my support. But if, by any means, thou hast been persuaded, or thinkest, that this poverty renders me of less consequence in my own country, or in any degree unhappy, thou art greatly deceived. I have no reason to complain of fortune; she supplies me with all that nature requires; and if I am without superfluities, I am also free from the desire of them. With these, I confess I should be more able to succour the necessitous, the only advantage for which the wealthy are to be envied; but small as my possessions are, I can still contribute with something to the support of the state, and the assistance of my friends. With respect to honours, my country places me, poor as I am, upon a level with the richest: for Rome knows no qualifications for great employments, but virtue and ability. She appoints me to officiate in the most august ceremonies of religion; she entrusts me with the command of her armies; she confides to my care the most important negotiations. My poverty does not lessen the weight and influence of my counsels in the senate; the Roman people honour me for that very poverty, which King Pyrrhus considers as a disgrace. They know the many opportunities I have had to enrich myself without censure; they are convinced of my disinterested zeal for their prosperity; and if I have any thing to complain of, in the return they make me, it is only the excess of their applause. What value, then, can I give to thy gold and silver? What king can add any thing to my fortune? Always attentive to discharge duties incumbent upon me, I have a mind free from self-reproach; and I have an honest fame.

LECCION SEGUNDA.

Pascábase Soliman segundo, una mañana temprano, á caballo, cuando una mujer con el pelo desgreñado y su ropa en desorden, se arrojó delante de su caballo y le pidió justicia. “ Tus soldados, jefe de los creyentes,” exclamó ella, “ han robado y saqueado mi casa durante la noche. ¿ Adonde iré aóra? Endonde encontraré á mis hijos, mi propiedad ó mi sustento?” Se sonrió el Sultan y respondió: “ En verdad, mi buena mujer, que debiais haber dormido profundamente cuando no os despertó el ruido que debió haber causado el saqueo de vuestra habitacion.” “ Sí,” replicó la mujer, “ en verdad que dormia profundamente, porque creí que Vuestra Alteza velaba por la seguridad de todos vuestros vasallos asi de noche como de dia.” Se penetró Soliman de la leccion transmitida en la respuesta de la mujer; y ordenó inmediata mente, que la propiedad que le habia sido robada se le restituyese, juntamente con un gran regalo, para recompensar la molestia y ansiedad que habia causado el saqueo en la paciente. Agradecido tambien á la admonicion que, tan inesperadamente se le habia dado, y queriendo imprimir en su memoria su deber ácia sus vasallos, ecsimió al pueblo, en que la mujer vivia, de todas sus contribuciones, por obsequio á ella.

SECOND LESSON.

Soliman the second was riding one morning at an early hour, when a woman with dishevelled hair, and in disordered garments, threw herself before his horse and demanded justice. "Your soldiers, commander of the faithful," she exclaimed, "have, during the night, robbed and pillaged my house. Where shall I now fly to? Where shall I find my children, my property, or my food?" The sultan smiled and answered: "You must have slept soundly indeed, my good woman, not to have been aroused by the noise, which the plunder of your dwelling must have occasioned." "Yes," replied the woman, "I slept indeed most soundly, for I believed that your highness watched over the safety of your subjects, by night, as well as in the day time." Soliman was struck with the lesson conveyed in the answer of the woman, and he immediately ordered, that the property taken away should be restored, together with a large present, to recompense the inconvenience and anxiety which the robbery had occasioned to the sufferer. Grateful too, for the admonition, which had been so unexpectedly given to him, and willing to impress upon his memory his duty to his subjects, he exempted the village in which the woman lived from all taxes for her sake.

THIRD LESSON.

How few men who have had sovereign power in their hands for many years can imitate John de Castro. This Portuguese general, who represented his sovereign in India, who enjoyed the most exclusive facilities for the acquisition of wealth, and whose predecessors had amassed princely fortunes, sent for the chief persons of his government, and among others the celebrated Xavier, a short time before En ocasiones, cuando mi sueldo no me ha sido pagado, he empleado mi patrimonio en servicio del Estado: hasta este momento, en la hora de mi muerte, no he tenido con que proporcionarme ni* aun* las comodidades que disfrutaban los soldados en el hospital. No puedo comprar el alimento prescrito por mi médico. Por todo lo que, en mi extrema pobreza, ruego el ser mantenido á costa pública, las pocas horas que haya de vivir aun.” Poco despues falleció, y todos los bienes que dejó fueron tres reales. Tan descuidado habia sido Castro de su propio interes, mientras estuvo empleado en el servicio de su Soberano.

LECCION CUARTA.

En lo profundo de la noche fué invadida la casa de un Arabe, y su familia atrozmente insultada. El hombre agraviado se hechó á los pies del Sultan, al dia siguiente, y pidió satisfaccion. El Monarca ordenó que los agresores fuesen conducidos ante él, con sus caras cubiertas con gorros. No negaron la esposicion del Arabe, y en consecuencia fueron condenados á muerte instantáneamente. Despues del suplicio se les quitaron los gorros, y mirándolos el Sultan con admiracion por algunos momentos, se arrodilló, levantó sus manos al cielo, y pareció absorto en silenciosa oracion. “¿Que causa de gozo ó pesadumbre halla, mi Señor, en la destruccion de estos malvados?” dijo uno de sus asistentes principales cuando el Monarca se levantó. “Mayor gozo del que vos podeis imaginar,” fué la réplica.

At times, when my salary has not been paid, I have employed my patrimony in the service of the state; until now, at my dying hour, I have not wherewith to furnish the luxuries enjoyed by soldiers in the hospital. The food prescribed by my physician, I cannot purchase. In my extreme poverty, therefore, I beg I may be supported at the public expense, for the few hours that I have yet to live." Soon afterwards he died, and the only property which he left was three rials; so careless had Castro been of his own interest, while engaged in the service of his sovereign.

FOURTH LESSON.

In the dead of night the dwelling of an Arab was entered, and his family grievously insulted. The injured man threw himself at the feet of the Sultan on the following day, and besought redress. The monarch ordered the offenders to be brought before him, with their features concealed in hoods. They did not deny the story of the Arab, and they were accordingly condemned to instant death. After the execution, the hoods were removed, and the sultan, gazing steadily on them for some moments, fell on his knees, raised his hands to heaven, and appeared absorbed in silent prayer. "What cause of joy or sorrow does my lord find in the destruction of these miscreants?" said one of the principal attendants, when the monarch arose. "Greater joy than you can conceive," was the Cruzando un rio, uno de los Reyes del Hindostan, sucedió que cayó en él, y ciertamente hubiera perdidó su real vida, sino se hubiera tiradó al agua un esclavo en pos de su Majestad; y como no hubiese mucho tiempo para ceremonias lo sacó por los cabellos, lo cual, segun demuestran los acontecimientos, se consideraba, en el Hindostan, como una parte mui sagrada de la real persona. Despues de que, á fuerza de hacerle voltear y de fricciones, volvió el Rey á su acuerdo, porque habia estado sumerjido por algun tiempo, inquirió quien lo habia salvado y el como se habia efectuado. Los amigos del esclavo se imaginaron que ya estaba hecha su fortuna, y en razon de ello fué conducido inmediatamente ante el Rey. El resultado, sin embargo, fué algo diverso de lo que ellos esperaron; porque despues de increparle el Monarca, por haberlo salvado por los cabellos, ordenó que fuese ajusticiado, por haber puesto sus manos sobre su real cabeza. Este ingrato mónstruo, no quedó, empero, sin premio. Poco tiempo despues, cruzando el mismo Rey el propio rio, se entretenia en hablar con una de sus mujeres situado cerca de una de las bordas del bote. Accidentalmente volvió á caer, y en esta ocasion se ahogó, aunque facilmente pudo haber sido salvado por la mujer, la que dió como causa de su omision en haberlo vericado, que habia

FIFTH LESSON.

One of the kings of Indostan, when crossing a river, happened to fall in, and would certainly have lost his royal life, had not a slave plunged into the water after his majesty, and, as there was not much time for ceremony, pulled him out by the hair, which, as events showed, was considered as a very tender part of royalty, in Indostan. When by dint of rolling and rubbing, the king was restored to recollection, for he had been immersed for some time, he inquired who had rescued him, and how it had been done. The friends of the slave thought that his fortune was made, and forthwith brought him to the king. The result, however, was somewhat different from what they expected; for the monarch, after abusing him for rescuing him by the hair, ordered him to be executed for having placed his hand upon his royal head. The ungrateful monster, however, went not without his reward. Not long afterwards, the same king was crossing the same river, and amused himself with talking with one of his women, as he stood near the side of the boat. Again he accidentally fell in, and this time was drowned, although he might have been easily rescued by the woman, who gave as a reason for her neglect

LECCION SECSTA.

Casimiro segundo, Rey de Polonia, jugaba una noche á los naipes con un oficial llamado Konarski. Las paradas eran subidas, y la fortuna estaba en favor del Rey. La escitacion fué grande, y al fin, el oficial por una vuelta fatal del dado, se halló reducido á la mendicidad. Se olvidó de que su Soberano era su antagonista; y se olvidó, lo que fué el mayor de los dos olridos, del respeto que se debía á sí mismo, y dió al Rey un golpe violento en la conversacion recriminatória que se siguió al juego. El oficial huyó inmediatamente receloso del castigo de su hecho. No obstante, fué perseguido, y despues de algun tiempo, descubierto y juzgado. Ante sus jueces, nunca hubiera podido esperar su absolucion. Su ofensa fué probada claramente; y fué condenado á muerte. Hasta este tiempo no habia intervenido el Rey en el asunto, ni aun para producir su testimonio; porque el cargo fué probado con otras personas que presenciaron el golpe dado y recibido. Casimiro, despues de esto, mandó á buscar á Konarski, y le recibió rodeado de sus cortesanos. “Yo no estoy sorprendido,” dijo el Rey, “de la conducta de este caballero. No habiendo podido vengarse por sí mismo de la fortuna, no hay que admirarse de que hubiese maltratado á su amigo. En todo caso, yo soy solamente el culpado en este negocio; por que nunca debí haber patrocinado, con mi ejemplo, costumbres perniciosas, que acaso pueden producir la ruina de mis nobles.” Volviéndose luego ácia el reo, y sacando, el<sup>o</sup> Rey, de su pecho el oro y notas que le habia ganado al fatal juego, dijo: “Percibo, que vos estais triste por vuestro

SIXTH LESSON.

Casimir II. king of Poland, was one evening playing cards with an officer, named Konarski. The stakes were high, and fortune was upon the side of the king. The excitement was great, and at last the officer found himself, by one fatal cast of the die, reduced to beggary. He forgot that his sovereign was his antagonist; and he forgot, which was the greatest forgetfulness of the two, the respect, which was due to himself; and he struck the king a violent blow, in the recriminatory conversation, which followed the game. He immediately fled, sensible of the punishment for the act. He was pursued, however, and after some time discovered and tried. Before his judges he could have had no hope of acquittal. The offence was clearly proven; and he was condemned to death. Up to this time the king had not interfered in the matter, not even to give his testimony; for the charge was proved by others, who saw the blow given and received. Casimir now sent for Konarski, and received him surrounded by his courtiers. "I am not surprised," said the king, "at the conduct of this gentleman. Not being able to revenge himself on fortune, it is not to be wondered at, that he ill-treated his friend. I am the only one, however, who is to blame in this affair; for I ought not, by my example, to encourage a pernicious practice, which may be the ruin of my nobility." Then turning to the criminal, and drawing from his bosom the gold and notes, which he had won from him at the fatal game, he said: "You, I perceive, are sorry for your fault:—that is sufficient: take your money again, and let us renounce gaming for ever.

LECCION SÉPTIMA.

Hallándose el curso de la justicia completamente pervertido en Constantinopla, el Emperador Justino, con el objeto de restaurarlo, nombró á un hombre de firmeza é integridad Prefecto de la ciudad, y mandó que se publicase por las calles, que las decisiones del Prefecto no admitirian apelacion; sino que serian definitivas en todo caso: que deberia ser considerado como el inmediato representante del Emperador; revestido de todo su poder y autorizado para castigar al rico y al poderoso, así como al pobre y al necesitado: y para hacer mas temible el empleo, el mismo Justino se comprometia á no conceder perdon cuando el reo hubiese sido condenado por el Prefecto. El nuevo magistrado era bien conocido de los habitantes; y su nombramiento y la declaracion del Emperador produjeron, cada una de porsí (colectivamente*) un efecto dichoso en restringir muchos de los abusos que habian sido cometidos anteriormente (before*) con impunidad. Habia solamente un individuo (one) que se consideraba fuera del alcance de la ley, y que abiertamente (audazmente) desafiaba á sus ministros, (officers). Una mañana, una pobre viuda compareció (made her appearance) ante el Prefecto, y pidió justicia contra un Oficial jeneral que la habia despojado de su propiedad, y privádola de los medios de su susistencia. Queriendo el Prefecto aórrar al agresor, (offender,) que era un pariente del Emperador, lo molesita y mortificacion de un juicio público, le escribió una esquila (note) imformándolo de la

SEVENTH LESSON.

The course of justice being completely perverted in Constantinople, the emperor Justin, in order to restore it, appointed a man of firmness and integrity, prefect of the city; and ordered it to be proclaimed in the streets, that the decision of the prefect should not admit appeal, but be final in every instance: that he should be deemed the immediate representative of the emperor, clothed with all his power, and authorised to punish the rich and powerful, as well as the poor and needy: and to render the office still more feared, Justin pledged himself to grant no pardon when the offender had been condemned by the prefect. The new magistrate was well known by the inhabitants, and his appointment, and the declaration of the emperor, had, of themselves, a very happy effect in restraining many of the abuses which had been before committed with impunity. There was one only, who thought himself beyond the reach of the law, and who openly defied its officers. One morning a poor widow made her appearance before the prefect, and besought justice against a general officer, who had plundered her of all her property, and entirely deprived her of the means of support. The prefect, wishing to spare the offender, who was a relation of the emperor, the pain and mortification of a public trial, wrote a note to him, informing him of the complaint, and begging him to make restitu-querella, (complaint) y rogándole que restituyese, sin necesidad de la esposicion ante su tribunal. Dió esta esquila á la viuda, quien la presentó al Jeneral; y quedó esperando por la respuesta pacientemente. En lugar, empero*, (however*) de restituir los jéneros que habia cojido, recargó á la pobre mujer de desverguenzas*, (with* abuse*) y la hechó de su presencia. Ella volvió inmediatamente adonde el Prefecto, quien al oir la recepcion con que se habia encontrado, libró* una orden al oficial para que compareciese ante él y respondiese á los cargos alegados contra él. El ministro* de justicia fué recibido tan mal como lo habia sido la viuda, y volvió á informar al juez de que se habia desacatado* el arresto totalmente, y que el reo habia ido á palacio á comer con el Emperador. El Prefecto lo siguió hasta allá, y, habiendo obtenido admision en razon de su empleo, compareció inmediatamente (at once) ante su Soberano y los numerosos convidados que estaban sentados á la mesa del banquete: “ Señor,” dijo: “ si persistiis en la resolucion de castigar el crimen, estoy pronto á ejecutar vuestras órdenes; pero si renunciáis esta noble empresa; si el mas perverso obtiene un asiento de honor en vuestra mesa, aceptad de mí, (Señor*) os ruego, la renuncia de un empleo inutil á vuestros vasallos é injurioso á vos mismo.” Admirado Justino, y aun complacido de la firmeza del Prefecto, replicó. “ No, no he variado de intencion. Persigue al crimen hasta lo último: si él se hallára sentado en mi trono lo entregaría al castigo.” Autorizado con esta noble réplica, mandó el Prefecto á sus asistentes que prendiesen al Jeneral, quien con un mudo temor se sometió á su autoridad. Fué conducido al* tribunal y su causa oida justamente. Por el dicho* (evidence) de varios testigos fué hallado culpado, y sufrió un castigo condigno á su ofensa. Este ejemplo detuvo por largo tiempo el progreso del crimen y de la violencia, y Justino orgulloso de la integridad de su magistrado, hizo perpétuo su empleo.

tion, without the necessity of exposure before his tribunal. This note he gave to the widow, who presented it to the general, and remained patiently awaiting his answer. In place, however, of restoring the goods, which he had taken away, he overwhelmed the poor woman with abuse, and drove her from his presence. She returned immediately to the prefect, who, on hearing the reception that she had met with, despatched a summons to the officer, to appear before him, and answer the charge alleged against him. The messenger of justice was received as the widow had been; and came back to inform the judge, that the arrest had been wholly disregarded, and that the offender had gone to the palace to dine with the emperor. The prefect followed him thither, and, his rank obtaining him admission, he at once appeared before his sovereign and the numerous guests, who were seated round the banquet table. "Sire," he said, "if you persist in your resolution to punish crime, I am ready to execute your commands; but if you renounce this noble design, if the most wicked obtain the seat of honour at your board, accept from me the resignation of an office, useless to your subjects and displeasing to yourself." Justin astonished, and yet gratified at the boldness of the prefect, replied. "No, I have not altered my intention. Pursue crime to the uttermost, were it seated with me on the throne, I would abandon it to punishment." Authorised by this noble reply, the prefect ordered his attendants to seize the general, who in mute fear submitted to his authority. He was carried before the tribunal, and his cause fairly heard. On the evidence of many witnesses he was found guilty, and suffered a punishment commensurate with his offence. This example checked for a long time, the progress of crime and violence: and Justin, proud of the integrity of his magistrate, made his office perpetual.

LECCION OCTAVA.

*Entró Cina en una conspiracion para asesinar á Augusto; y el Emperador fué informado de ello por uno de los conjurados*. Dudaba el Emperador como actuar. El habia usado de la severidad en muchos casos, sin efecto, y no creía que el suplicio de Cina produciría mejor efecto que los suplicios de los otros. Pero era indispensable que algo se practicara; mas cuando aun se hallaba indeciso, Livia, su esposa, adivinando la causa de su enajenacion, le pidió permiso para darle, siquiera* por una vez, un consejo. “ Los médicos,” dijo ella, “ cuando un remedio es ineficaz, prueban otro; y frecuentemente uno, el mas contrario en sus efectos al últimamente usado. Seguid su ejemplo. En todas las conjuraciones formadas contra vos, habeis empleado, sin éxito, el castigo mas* severo. Y en verdad, que (however) nada habeis conseguido con vuestro rigor. Probad, pues*, aóra los efectos de la clemencia y perdonad á Cina. El está descubierto, y por consecuencia no puede dañaros, y vuestra conmiseracion ácia él podrá ser de grande utilidad al progreso de vuestra reputacion.” Penetrado Augusto del aviso de Livia se propuso seguirlo, despues de una detenida meditacion. En virtud de él ordenó, que Cina fuese conducido á su presencia. Le habló sobre la iniquidad de sus designios; le manifestó su imprudencia, y concluyó diciéndole: “ Y bien, Cina, la vida que una vez os di como enemigo, se la dejaré gozar* aóra á un traidor y á un parricida; y esta será la última reconcion que os haga. Para lo futuro sea nuestra sola lid el demostrar cual de los dos pueda aventajar, al otro en actos de consideracion (kindness) y amistad.” Despues de esta época (after this) jamas volvió Augusto á hallar á Cina comprometido en conjuraciones contra él, y Livia triunfó con el próspero resultado que produjo la clemencia, sobre cuyo particular (which) ella habia dado su consejo. (por la que, ella habia abogado.)*

EIGHTH LESSON.

Cinna entered into a conspiracy to murder Augustus; and the emperor was informed of it by one of the confederates. The emperor was in doubt how to act. He had already tried severity in many cases, without effect; and did not know that the execution of Cinna would be attended with better effect than the execution of others. Still something must be done; and while he was yet hesitating, Livia, his wife, divining the cause of his abstraction, asked permission for once to advise him. "Physicians," said she, "when one remedy fails, try another; and frequently one most contrary in its operation to that last used. Follow their example. To all the conspiracies that have been formed against you, you have, without success, employed severe punishment. You have got nothing, however, by your severity. Try now what clemency will do, and forgive Cinna. He is discovered, and consequently can do no injury to your person; and your forgiveness of him, will do great service in the advancement of your reputation." Augustus was struck with the advice of Livia, and after some further consideration, he determined to adopt it. He therefore ordered Cinna to be brought before him. He told him of the iniquity of his designs, exposed to him their impolicy, as well as their ingratitude, and concluded by saying: "Well, Cinna, the life that I gave to you once, as an enemy, I will now continue to a traitor and to a parricide; and this is the last reproach that I will give you. For the future, let our only struggle be, to show which can overcome the other in acts of kindness and friendship." After this, Augustus found Cinna engaged in no more conspiracies against him; and Livia triumphed in the successful result of the clemency which she had advised.

LECCION NOVENA.

*El hijo de un Especiero, en la ciudad de Esmirna, por medio de su honradez é industria, ascendió al empleo de Inspector de pesos y medidas, con poder bastante para castigar á todos los traficantes que violasen (las* leyes*) del almotacen. Se sabía en la vecindad de que su padre usaba pesas faltas; y cuando se entendió que el Inspector venía allí en su primer visita, los amigos del Especiero le rogaron que no se aventurase al castigo, sino que se hiciese de pesas cabales. El padre se rió de la idea de ser castigado por* mano* de su hijo; y considerandose perfectamente seguro, esperó tranquilamente su llegada. “ Buen hombre,” dijo el Inspector, “ traedme vuestras pesas y medidas, á fin de que yo pueda ecsaminarlas.” El otro (el padre) intentó el considerar la demanda como una chanza, y reusó obedecer. Persistiendo en su negativa, se usó de la fuerza y se trajeron y ecsaminaron las pesas. Se hallaron tan faltas* del almotacen, que el Especiero fué multado en cincuenta piastras, y sentenciado á recibir igual número de palos. Después que se le hubo aplicado la última pena (last punishment) en el mismo lugar, (en la misma tienda) se arrojó el Inspector de su caballo, y cayendo á los pies de su padre los regó con sus lágrimas. “ Padre,” dijo, “ yo he descargado mi deber para con Dios, mi Patria, y mi Soberano; permitidme ahora, por mi respeto y sumision, que cumpla* con la obligacion que os debo. La justicia es ciega. Es el poder de Dios en* la tierra, y no respeta los vínculos del parentesco ó de la connexion. Vos habiais delinquido contra las leyes de la justicia y merecido este castigo. Conducióos mejor en lo futuro, y en vez de censurarme, compadecedme al verme comprometido á tan cruel deber (necessity).”*

NINTH LESSON.

The son of a grocer in the city of Smyrna, by dint of honesty and industry, rose to the situation of inspector of weights and measures, with full power to punish all the dealers, who violated the standard. His father was well known in the neighbourhood to make use of false weights; and when it was understood, that the inspector was coming round on his first visit, the friends of the grocer intreated him not to run the risk of punishment, but to procure true weights. The father laughed at the idea of receiving punishment at the hands of his son, and thinking himself perfectly secure, quietly awaited his arrival. "Good man," said the inspector, "bring me your weights and measures, that I may examine them." The other attempted to treat the demand as a jest, and refused to obey. Persisting in his refusal, force was at last employed, and the weights were produced and examined. They were found to be so much below the standard, that the grocer was fined fifty piastres, and sentenced to receive the same number of bastinadoes. After this last punishment had been inflicted, on the spot, the inspector threw himself from his horse, and falling at the feet of his father, bathed them in his tears, "Father," said he, "I have discharged my duty to my God, my country, and my sovereign; permit now by my respect and submission, to discharge the duty which I owe to you. Justice is blind. It is the power of God on earth, and has no respect to the ties of kindred or connexion. You had offended against the laws of justice, and you deserved this punishment. Behave better for the future, and instead of censuring me, pity me on being reduced to so cruel a necessity."

LECCION DECIMA.

Cuando Federico, de Prusia, fabricaba el palacio de Sans Souci, descubrió que el plan que habia adoptado para sus jardines se trastornaria infinito por un molino que, en consecuencia de ello, determinó mudar (de* allí). Habiendo mandado á buscar al molinero, le preguntó que cantidad tomaría por el molino, refiriéndose, al mismo tiempo, á su total valor. El hombre lo reusó. El Monarca dobló y triplicó la suma, y finalmente ofreció edificar otro molino, en mejor paraje, á mas de pagar el valor del antiguo. Aun así reusó hacer negocio el molinero. Dijo: que el molino habia sido de la pertenencia de su bisabuelo, y que* estaba resuelto á transmitirlo á sus hijos, del mismo modo que habia recaído en él. Al fin, se irritó Federico y dijo al hombre, que era un* necio en reusar sus ofertas de pagarle, cuando estaba en su poder el obtener el molino por fuerza y* sin compensacion alguna. “Eso* no*, (not) mientras haya un tribunal de justicia en Berlin,” replicó el molinero con firmeza; aludiendo al tribunal establecido por el mismo Federico, para la satisfacion de agravios. El Monarca se agradó infinito de la franca réplica, por que ella demostraba confianza en su integridad y justicia, y habiendo resuelto dejar el molino intacto, varió de una vez el plan de sus jardines.

En el jardín de Abbas Mirza, el Príncipe de la corona de Persia, y el heredero presuntivo del trono, Moritz Von Kotzbue, agregado á la embajada Rusa, reparó un dia en una porcion de una antigua pared, la que correspondia malisimamente con el resto del cercado, disfigurando la vista de aquella parte del jardín. El agregado (he) le preguntó á

TENTH LESSON.

When Frederick, of Prussia, was building the palace of Sans Souci, he discovered, that the plan, which he had adopted for his gardens, would be much interfered with by a mill, which he therefore determined to remove. Having sent for the miller, he asked him what sum he would take for the mill, naming at the same time its full value. The man refused. The monarch doubled and trebled the sum, and at last offered to build another mill, in a better situation, independent of the price of the old one. Still the miller refused the bargain. The mill, he said, had been in the possession of his great-grandfather, and he was determined to transmit it to his children, as it had descended to him. At last Frederick became provoked, and told the man, that he was silly to refuse his offers of payment, as it was in his power to obtain the mill by force, without any compensation. "Not while there is a court of justice at Berlin," answered the miller steadily; alluding to the court established by Frederick himself, for the redress of injuries. The monarch was pleased at the frank reply; because it intimated a confidence in his integrity and justice, and resolving to leave the mill untouched, altered the plan of his gardens.

ELEVENTH LESSON.

In the garden of the Abbas Mirza, the crown prince of Persia, the heir apparent to the throne, Moritz Von Kotzebue, attached to the Russian embassy, one day perceived a portion of an old wall which assorted but ill with the rest of the inclosure, and disfigured the appearance of that part of the garden. He asked Abbas Mirza why he had

*Abbas Mirza, por que habia permitido que permaneciese allí, (dicho muro*) cuando tanto gasto y trabajo se habia impendido en todo él en las fábricas mas costosas. Porque, “ á deciros la verdad,” replicó el Príncipe, “ ese pedazo de pared pertenece á un anciano de quien no me es posible ni negociarlo ni comprarlo. El insiste en poseerlo, (in keeping it) y aunque facilmente podria yo apoderarme de él por la* fuerza, no estrañándolo nadie, ni diciéndome que no, yo, empero, admiro el respeto que el anciano tributa á la propiedad paternal, y debo contentarme con dejar que permanezca su pared endonde ecsiste, en daño de mi jardin, hasta tanto que halle á alguno de sus herederos que sea mas razonable que él lo es.”*

Miserias de un Hombre Rico.

¡Quien es seguido por las calles, y postrado á golpes á media noche? El hombre rico. ¡Cuya es la casa abierta y asaltada á media noche? Del hombre rico. ¡A quien se le cortan las faltriqueras, y se le hecha á perder la casa entre la multitud? Al hombre rico. ¡Quien es el que ignora si las jentes se rien ó no de él cuando estan sentadas con él á la mesa? El hombre rico. ¡Quien aumenta sus cuidados por cada alto, (ú cuerpo) que agrega á su casa? El hombre rico—por que cuanto mas sube, tanto mas fria se halla la atmosfera. Quiebra un banco, y ¡Quien padece? El permitted it to remain there, when so much labour and expense had been bestowed every where else in the most costly erection. “Why, to tell you the truth,” replied the prince, “that bit of wall belongs to an old man from whom I can neither buy nor purchase it. He persists in keeping it, and although I might easily enough possess myself of it by force and no one wonder or say no to me; yet I admire the reverence which the old man pays to his paternal property, and I must be satisfied with letting his wall remain where it is, to the injury of my garden, until I find one of his heirs who will be more reasonable than he is.”

What a striking instance of justice and forbearance, in one, whose will was law, and whose education was certainly not the best adapted, to inculcate principles of moderation and control!

TWELFTH LESSON.

Miseries of a Rich Man.

Who is dogged in the streets and knocked down at midnight? the rich man. Whose house is broken into at midnight? the rich man's. Who has his pockets cut out, and his coat spoiled in a crowd? the rich man. Who is in doubt whether the people are laughing at him in their sleeves when they are eating his dinner? the rich man. Who adds to his trouble, by every story which he adds to his house? The rich man—for the higher he ascends the colder is the atmosphere. A bank breaks, and who suffers? the rich

LECCION PRIMERA.

Empresas Navales y Militares.

*El cuidadoso favor de la providencia, acaso, jamas fué tan visible y fuertemente demostrado, como durante la revolucion Americana; y jamas tuvo pueblo alguno mas justas causas para tributar reverentes agradecimientos, (acciones* de gracias*) que los habitantes de las provincias de la Gran Bretaña, en su lid por la independencia.*

*En el año de mil setecientos setenta y cinco, ocurrió ser objeto del mayor momento, que el ejército Inglés fuese desalojado del pueblo de Boston, que entonces lo ocupaba, bajo el Jeneral Gage. Se enviaron al Jeneral Washington órdenes del congreso para que efectuase el objeto á todo trance. Washington habia visto de antemano que la posesion* de las alturas de Dorchester le proporcionaria decididas ventajas sobre el enemigo, y al punto (now) determinó ocuparlas á todo riesgo. Se fijó la noche del 14 de Marzo de 1775, para la empresa, y en cuanto anocheció, emprendió una rápida, pero silenciosa marcha, una gran division del ejército Americano, llevando consigo picos, palas y azadones, con el intento de construir un fuerte provisional (temporary). No tardaron muchos (los* Americanos*) en llegar al lugar proyectado; cuando dejando á un lado las armas, dieron principio á sus trabajos nocturnos* (midnight) despreciando el vivo cañoneo, que el ruido de su faena les atrajo, de los buques Ingleses. Por la mañana, el admirado gefe Inglés vió las alturas de Dorchester cubiertas de hombres y una fortificacion que progresaba rápidamente, la cual, sufriendose que continuara hasta finalizarse paria en poco tiempo á Boston inocupable por sus tropas. El gefe Inglés (he) determinó al punto asaltar y tomar las obras, aun no concluidas, de los Americanos, como medio único de conservar la ocupacion de la ciudad. Era el dia uno de los mas despejados y hermosos, cuando*

FIRST LESSON.

Naval and Military Achievements.

The superintending favour of Providence, was never, perhaps, more strongly and visibly shown, than during the American revolution; and never had a people more just cause for pious thankfulness, than the inhabitants of the provinces of Great Britain, in their struggle for independence.

In the year 1775, it became a matter of the highest moment, that the British army should be driven from the town of Boston, which it then occupied, under the command of General Gage. Orders from Congress were sent to General Washington to effect this object at every risk. Washington had long seen, that the command of Dorchester Heights would give him decided advantages over the enemy; and he now determined, at all hazards, to possess himself of them. The night of the 14th of March, 1775, was fixed upon for the attempt; and, as soon as it was dark, a large detachment of the American army commenced a rapid but silent march, carrying with them picks, spades, and mattocks, for the purpose of constructing a temporary fortification. It was not very long before they arrived at the appointed spot; when, laying aside their arms, they began their midnight toil, unmindful of the brisk cannonade, which the noise of their labours brought upon them from the British shipping. In the morning, the astonished commander of the English saw the heights of Dorchester covered with men, and a fortification rapidly progressing, which, if suffered to be completed, would, in a short time, render Boston untenable by his troops. He at once determined to storm and carry the yet unfinished works of the Americans, as the only means of keeping possession of the town. The day was one of cloudless beauty, when he gave the necessary order for the embarkation of a detachdió la orden conveniente para el embarque de un grueso de su ejército, afin de cruzar el angosto islote que lo separaba de los sitiadores. Columna tras columna, revozando confianza en la victoria, marcharon á la orilla del agua en donde se hallaban listos los botes de los buques para recibirlos. Los Americanos, en la orilla opuesta, observaban sus movimientos, y con sus corazones ecsaltados se preparaban activamente para la defensa. Mas apenas se hubieron embarcado los primeros trozos, cuando se levantó una tempestad, casi instantáneamente. Las olas corrian furiosamente sobre la plea marea, y el paso se hizo intransitable. Fué necesaria la demora, y los tres dias que se siguieron de viento y lluvia violenta, impidieron efectivamente la repeticion de la empresa. Los Americanos completaron sus fortificaciones; y hallando los Ingleses la ciudad dominada por la artillería de los sitiadores, se embarcaron abordo de sus buques y la abandonaron.

LECCION SEGUNDA.

Otro ejémplo, no menos imponente de la interposicion de la divina providencia, ocurrió despues de la desastrosa suerte del ejército Americano en Long Island. El Jeneral Washington se habia retirado dentro de las líneas de Brooklyn. A su frente se hallaba el enemigo, quien por una atrevida y rápida carga hubiera tomado las débiles fortificaciones que protejian á aquel. A su retaguardia y separándolo de Nueva York, se hallaba el Rio del Este, en el que, solo la permanencia de los fuertes vientos de Nordeste impedian la entrada de la escuadra Inglesa. En esta angustiada situacion, en este urgente riesgo de hallarse situado entre dos fuegos, con un ejército vencido y desalentado, determinó evacuar su posicion y retirarse á Nueva York, como el único medio de seguridad.

ment of his army, to cross the narrow inlet, which separated him from the besiegers. Column after column, exulting with the confidence of victory, marched to the water's edge, where the boats of the shipping were in readiness to receive them. The Americans, on the opposite shore, marked all their movements, and with anxious hearts were making their hurried preparations for defence. Scarcely, however, had the foremost platoons embarked, when a storm arose, almost instantaneously—the waves rolled wildly on the ebbing tide, and the passage became impracticable. Delay became necessary, and the three days of violent wind and rain which followed, effectually prevented the repetition of the attempt. The Americans completed their fortifications; and the British, finding the town commanded by the artillery of the besiegers, embarked on board of their shipping and abandoned it.

SECOND LESSON.

Another, and no less striking instance of the interposition of Divine Providence, occurred after the disastrous fate of the American army on Long Island. General Washington had retreated within the lines at Brooklyn. Before him was the enemy, who, by a bold and rapid charge, could have carried the slight fortifications which protected him. Behind him and separating him from New York, was the East river, into which the prevalence of a strong north-east wind alone prevented the British fleet from entering. In this distressing situation, in hourly danger of being placed between two fires, with a vanquished and dispirited army, he determined to evacuate his position, and retire into New York, as the only means of safety.

En el momento de su retirada, el viento Nordeste que hubiera hecho el paso del rio en extremo peligroso, cambió al Nordeste, y las agitadas aguas hasta entonces quedaron llanas y tranquilas (se apaciguaron.) Al mismo tiempo una espesa niebla cubrió toda Long Island de oscuridad, y encubrió el movimiento de los Americanos, mientras que la atmósfera de Nueva York estaba perfectamente clara; y cuando el sol de la mañana disipó la densa niebla, de delante de ellos, vieron los Ingleses á la retaguardia del ejército continental desembarcando con seguridad fuera de su alcance. Durante la niebla, nueve mil hombres, con su artillería, bagajes y municiones de guerra, fueron transportados sin la menor pérdida, á la vista inmediata de su enemigo.

LECCION TERCERA.

Despues de la batalla de Cowpens, el ejército, en retirada, del Jeneral Morgan fué perseguido por el Lord Cornwallis con la actividad de quien se habia imaginado de que su enemigo se hallaba á su alcance, y de que solo era necesario un pequeño esfuerzo para destruirlo para siempre.

Llovía á torrentes, cuando Morgan llegó á las orillas de Rio Ancho, (Broad river.) Lo cruzó, sin moderarse un momento, y continuó con diligencia infatigable por el camino de Virginia. Cuando Cornwallis llegó al mismo paraje, aunque pocas horas despues, el rio (stream) habia crecido tanto (to such a size) que presentaba una barrera impasable. Continuó por dos dias sin bajar, (undiminished), y cuando cedió, prosiguió Cornwallis en su seguimiento con una rapidez sin ejemplo. Tan veloces fueron sus movimientos, que cuando las últimas filas de Morgan estaban desembarcando sobre la orilla opuesta del Catawba,

At the moment of his retreat, the north-east wind, which would have rendered the passage of the river dangerous in the extreme, shifted to the north-west, and the hitherto agitated water became smooth and tranquil. At the same time, a thick fog veiled the whole of Long Island in obscurity, and concealed the movements of the Americans, while the atmosphere of New York was perfectly clear; and when the morning sun drove the heavy vapour from before them, the British saw the rear of the continental army, landing in security beyond their reach. While the fog lasted, nine thousand men, with their artillery, baggage, and munitions of war, were brought off without the smallest loss, in the immediate presence of their enemy.

End of the second Lesson.

THIRD LESSON.

After the battle of Cowpens, the retreating army of General Morgan was pursued by Lord Cornwallis, with the activity of one, who fancied his enemy was within his reach, and it only needed a slight exertion to crush him for ever.

The rain was falling in torrents, when Morgan reached the banks of Broad river. He crossed without a moment's delay, and continued with unabated speed upon the road to Virginia. When Cornwallis arrived at the same spot, but a few hours after, the stream had swollen to such a size, as to present an impassable barrier. For two days it continued undiminished; and when it abated, Cornwallis continued the pursuit with unprecedented rapidity. So rapid were his movements, that when Morgan's last platoons were debarking on the opposite side of the Catawba, the la vanguardia del ejército inglés llegó al paraje que aquellas acababan de dejar, no había veinte minutos. Pero la Providencia estuvo otra vez de parte (on the side) de los Americanos. Ocurrió aun creciente en el Catawba, igual á la que había detenido á los Ingleses en Rio Ancho; y una bramadora creciente se interpuso igualmente, (thus) por segunda vez, entre ellos y sus presuntas víctimas. Asi se salvó, en dos ocasiones, el ejército de Morgan, por acaecimientos, (circumstances) sin los cuales hubiera sido (fallen) inevitablemente presa del mayor número, y de la actividad de sus perseguidores.

Los Estados Unidos contra la Macedonia.

La fragata de los Estados Unidos, Estados Unidos, su Comandante Estevan Decatur, de 44 cañones, portando 54; habiéndose separado de la division del Comodoro Rodgers con la que dió la vela de Boston, el 18 de Octubre de 1812, cruzó sobre las aguas de las fragatas inglesas hasta el 25, cuando en la latitud de 29 grados, N. longitud 29 grados, 30 minutos O, se encontró con la fragata inglesa Macedonia, su Comandante John Carden, de 38 cañones, pero portando 49, siendo el non, un cañon movable. La Macedonia se hallaba á barlovento, y entró en combate á toda su distancia (á la distancia del alcance de sus fuegos.) Por media hora despues de principiado el combate no pudo la Estados Unidos usar de sus carronadas, manteniéndose el enemigo á distancia de su alcance, y no acercándose jamas al de la metralla ó fusilería. Por razon de esto duró el combate mas tiempo que lo ordinario, y continuó ventajosamente en favor del enemigo, hasta tanto que la United States se le vanguard of the British Army reached the place, which they had left not twenty minutes before. But Providence was again on the side of the Americans. A rise of water took place in the Catawba, similar to that which checked the British at Broad river; and a roaring flood was thus, a second time, interposed between them and their anticipated victims. Thus was the army of Morgan twice saved, by circumstances, without which it must inevitably have fallen a prey to the superior numbers and activity of its pursuers.

The United States against the Macedonian.

The United States' frigate, the United States, captain Stephen Decatur, of 44 guns, carrying 54, having separated from the squadron under Commodore Rodgers, with which she left Boston on the 16th of October, 1812, cruised in the track of the British frigates until the 25th, when in latitude 29 deg. N. long. 29 deg. 30 min. W. she fell in with the British frigate Macedonian, Captain John Carden, of 38 guns, but carrying 49, the odd one being a shifting gun. The Macedonian was to windward, and entered the engagement at her own distance. For half an hour after the commencement of the action, the United States had no opportunity of using her carronades, the enemy keeping out of their reach, and never once coming within the range of grape or musketry. The action, therefore, was of greater length than usual, and continued under every advantage to the enemy, until the United States neared him.

Pero el palo de mesana de la Macedonia recibió un balazo y cayó por la fogonadura; sus masteleros de trinquete y gavia (tambien cayeron) por los tamborettes; su arboladura baja se hallaba abaleada malamente; su palo mayor destruido y toda su cabullería cortada. La mayor parte de sus cañones inutilizados; el mayor número de su tripulacion muerta y herida; y hallándose completamente desmantelada, se rindió, despues de una accion de hora y media, y en el momento en que viraba la Estados Unidos para arrasarla con sus fuegos de popa á proa.

La Constitucion contra la Java.

Se habia acordado (matured) un plan en el departamento de Marina para un crucero en los mares del sud, y la fragata Constitucion, mandada entonces (now) por el Comodoro William Bainbridge; la Essex, Capitan Porter, y la Hornet, Capitan (Comandante) Lawrence, fueron elegidas para hacer el viaje en consorcio. El 27 de Octubre de 1812, dió la vela la Essex del Delaware, y el 30 de Octubre, la Constitucion y Hornet de Boston, habiéndose determinado varios puntos de rendezvous, en cualquiera de los cuales debia reunirse esta fuerza para proceder al crucero. En el 29 de Diciembre no se habia aun verificado la union (reunion) de estos buques, y en dicho dia descubrió la Constitucion, al medio dia, una vela en la latitud de 13 grados 6 minutos sud. The fire from her then became so vivid, that the enemy's crew imagining her to be on fire, gave many demonstrations of their joy, and expected every minute to see her blown up. But the Macedonian's mizen mast was shot away by the board, her fore and top masts by the caps, her lower masts badly wounded, her main mast destroyed, and all her rigging cut up. Most of her guns were disabled, the largest part of her crew killed and wounded, and having become a perfect wreck, she surrendered after an action of an hour and a half, at the moment when the United States was about to rake her. .

The Constitution against the Java.

A plan had been matured at the navy department for a cruise in the South Seas, and the frigate Constitution, now commanded by Commodore William Bainbridge, the Essex, Captain Porter, and the Hornet, Captain Lawrence, were selected to prosecute the voyage in company. On the 27th of October, 1812, the Essex sailed from the Delaware, and on the 30th, the Constitution and Hornet from Boston; several places of rendezvous having been assigned, at either of which this force to be united, to proceed upon the cruise. On the 26th of December, the union of these vessels had not been effected; and on that day the Constitution descried a sail at meridian, in lat. 13 deg. 6 min. S. long. 38 W. ten leagues from St. Salvador, which she soon discovered to

Se maniobró infinito en ambas partes, siendo el objeto del enemigo el del ataque por la popa (raking), y el de la Constitucion el de evitar dicho ataque, y el de separar á su enemigo de una costa neutral. A las 2 de la tarde se hallaba el enemigo á media milla de la Constitucion, y á barlovento, habiendo arriado su bandera, menos el yak de la union, que tremolaba en el tope del palo de mesana. Se le disparó entonces un cañazo por su proa para que izase su bandera; pero fué contestado el cañonazo con toda una andanada. Entonces se izó la bandera del enemigo y principió la accion con bala y metralla; pero se mantuvo á tan gran distancia, que la metralla tuvo poco efecto; y el atraelo mas cerca hubiera espuesto á la Constitucion á un fuego cruel de popa á proa. A las dos y media se hallaban ambos buques á buena distancia de metralla, cuando la rueda del timon de la Constitucion se inutilizó de un balazo. A las 2 y 40 minutos mareó las gávias, y habiendo determinado el Comodoro Bainbridge el acercarse á él orzó sobre élla con tal intento, y diez minutos despues el botalon de foque del enemigo se entró por la jarcia de mesana de la Constitucion, y diez minutos despues se llebó un balazo su baupres y botalon de foque. A las 3 y cinco minutos cayó, de un balazo un poco mas arriba del tamborete, su mastelero de gávia. Esto fué seguido de la pérdida de las botavaras de las cangrejas, y poco despues cayó casi por la fagonadura su palo mayor. A las 4 y cinco minutos se silenció completamente al enemigo, y estando abajo su bandera del palo mayor, se creyó que se habia rendido. En razon de esto mareó de proa la Constitucion para reparar averias, lo que ejecutado, y no viéndose arbolado el pavellon enemigo, arribó y se dirijió acia él en una manera interesante, y se atravesó muy cerca por su aleta de popa, en una posicion ventajosa par

Much manœuvring took place on both sides, the object of the enemy being to rake, and of the Constitution to avoid being raked, and to draw the enemy from the neutral coast. At 2 P. M. the enemy was within half a mile of the Constitution, and to windward, having hauled down all her colours, except the union jack, which was at the mizen mast head. A gun was then fired ahead of him, to make him show his colours; but this gun was answered by a whole broadside. The enemy's colours were then hoisted, and the action began with round and grape; but he kept at so great a distance, that the grape had little effect, and to bring him nearer, would expose the Constitution to severe raking. At 30 minutes past 2, both ships were within good canister distance, when the Constitution's wheel was shot away. At 40 minutes past two, the fore and main sail were set, and Commodore Bainbridge, being now determined to close with him, luffed up for that purpose, and in ten minutes after the enemy's jib-boom got foul of the Constitution's mizen rigging, and in another ten minutes his bowsprit and jib-boom were shot away. At 5 minutes past 3, his main top-mast was shot away just above the cap. This was followed by the loss of his gaff and spanker boom, and soon after, his main mast went nearly by the board. At 5 minutes past 4, the enemy was completely silenced, and his colours at the main being down, it was thought he had surrendered. The Constitution, therefore, shot ahead to repair damages, which being done, and the enemy's flag being discovered to be still flying, she wore, stood for the enemy in handsome style, and got close athwart his bows in an effectual position for raking

LECCION SESTA.

Fué en el primero de Agosto de 1798, cuando el Capitan Hood, en el Zealous, descubrió la escuadra francesa en la baía de Aboukir. Parecia que los buques estaban anclados en una línea compacta de batalla, sostenidos por una batería de cañones y morteros en la isla, á su vanguardia, mientras que sus flancos se hallaban reforzados por lanchas cañoneras.

Sin embargo de que soplabá fresco el viento y que el día estaba al concluirse, no obstante, el Almirante hizo señal de ataque, y demostró al mismo tiempo que era su intencion atacar la vanguardia y centro del enemigo segun se hallaba al ancla, de acuerdo con el plan comunicado ya por él á los respectivos comandantes.

La escuadra Inglesa, cada buque de la cual, sondaba su derrota segun navegaba, hizo por él puerto; y habiéndole ocurrido á Sir Horatio la idea, que en donde habia campo para que un buque pudiese balancear habia tambien* lugar para que otro anclase, se tomaron las medidas necesarias para llevar á efecto esta idea no obstante que el Culloder habia barado en la isla de Bequier. The Constitution had 9 men killed, and 25 wounded. The Java, 60 killed, and 170 wounded.

SIXTH LESSON.

Lord Nelson's victory of the Nile.

It was on the 1st of August, 1798, that Captain Hood, in the Zealous, discovered the French fleet in Aboukir Bay. They appeared to be moored in a compact line of battle, supported by a battery of guns and mortars on an island in their van, while their flanks were strengthened by gun-boats.

Although the wind blew fresh, and the day was far spent, yet the admiral made the signal for battle, and signified at the same time that it was his intention to attack the enemy's van and centre as it lay at anchor, according to the plan already communicated by him to the respective captains.

The British fleet, every ship of which sounded its way as it proceeded, stood in ; and Sir Horatio being struck with the idea, that where was room for one ship to swing, there was room for another to anchor, measures were taken for carrying this idea into effect, notwithstanding the Culloden had grounded on Bequier Island. The Goliath and Zeajuntamente con el Orion, el Audacious y el Theseus se dirigieron ácia dentro, (á mezclarse* entre* los buques* enemigos*), y recibieron el fuego mas tremendo de la Vanguardia de la escuadra, asi tambien como de las baterías de tierra, mientras que la Vanguardia ancló afuera del enemigo, (delante* del enemigo*), á medio tiro de pistola del (navío*) Spartiate. El Minotaur, Defence, Bellerophon, Majestic, Swiftsure, y Alexander, llegaron en sucesion; y el Capitan (Comandante*) Thompson, del Leander dejó caer su ancla atravesándose por la serviola de proa del Franklin, un navío de ochenta, en un modo tan majistral que molestó así á un mismo tiempo á aquel (el Franklin) y al L'Orient.

No obstante que mui luego oscureció, el Guerrier fué desarbolado al cabo de pocos minutos y ecsistiendo aún el crepúsculo (twilight). El Conquerant y el Spartiate fueron tambien reducidos mui pronto á semejante estado. El Aquilon, el Souverain Peuple, y el Spartiate se rindieron; poco despues el navío del Almirante, el L'Orient, se descubrió estar incendiado, y se esparcieron las llamas al momento con tanta rapidéz, que se tubieron grandes recelos no solo de su salvamento, sino tambien del de los buques de la escuadra inglesa que se hallaban en su inmediata vecindad. Del navío del Almirante inglés se despachó el único bote capaz de navegar, y siguiendo tal* ejemplo los comandantes de los otros buques se salvaron cerca de setenta vidas; y muchas mas se hubieran preservado de la muerte, si no se hubiera volado repentinamente el L'Orient con la mas tremenda esplosion.

Cesó el fuego continuo, escepto solamente, durante el intervalo de este horrible momento, y habiéndose asegurado ya (now) la victoria en la Vanguardia, aquellos navíos que no estuvieron incapacitados, arribaron sobre los del enemigo que no habian estado en el combate.

lous, together with the Orion, the Audacious, and the Theseus, led inside, and received a most tremendous fire from the van of the fleet, as well as from the batteries on shore, while the Vanguard anchored on the outside of the enemy, within half a pistol shot of Le Spartiate. The Minotaur, Defence, Bellerophon, Majestic, Swiftsure, and Alexander, came up in succession ; and Captain Thompson, of the Leander, dropped her anchor athwart the hawse of Le Franklin, an eighty gun ship, in such a masterly manner, as to annoy both her and L'Orient.

Notwithstanding the darkness that soon ensued, Le Guerrier was dismasted in the course of a few minutes, while the twilight yet remained ; Le Conquerant and Le Spartiate were also soon reduced to a similar state ; L'Aquilon, Le Souverain Peuple, and Le Spartiate surrendered ; soon after which the admiral's ship L'Orient was discovered to be on fire, and the flames burst forth with such rapidity, that great apprehensions were entertained, not only for her safety, but also that of such ships of the British fleet as were in her immediate vicinity. The only boat in a condition to swim was immediately despatched from the English admiral's ship, and the commanders of others following the example, about seventy lives were saved ; and many more would have been rescued from death, had not L'Orient blown up suddenly, with a most tremendous explosion.

With the interval of this awful moment only excepted, the firing continued ; and the victory having been now secured in the van, such ships as were not disabled bore down upon those of the enemy that had not been in the engagement.

Cuando la Aurora descubrió la escena de este terrible conflicto, dos buques de línea solamente (el Gilleaume Tell y el Genereux) se descubrieron con sus banderas largas, habiendo los restantes arriado sus insignias. Persuadidos estos de su riesgo, juntamente con dos fragatas, picaron sus cables en el resto de la mañana, y se hicieron al mar. Todo el 2 y 5 de Agosto se* emplearon* en asegurar los navíos Franceses que se habian rendido.

Los postreros momentos del Lord Nelson.

Poco antes del principio del combate de Trafalgar fué el Lord Nelson á los diversos entrepuentes del Victoria, vio y habló á las diferentes clases de marineros; los animó con su acostumbrada afabilidad, y se complació mucho del modo con que los marineros habian ostruido los escovenes del navío. Todo yacía en un perfecto silencio, parecido al de la muerte, hasta poco antes de que principiase la accion. Se le dieron tres vivas á su Señoria al momento de subir la escalera del alcazar. Habia sido (fué) mui prolijo en recomendar un pasivo y detenido fuego, en preferencia al precipitado, sin puntería y sin precision; y el efecto justificó los consejos de su Señoria, cuando los palos de sus oponentes cayeron de falondres sobre sus cubiertas y á sus costados. A la media hora despues, empezó la batalla á desolar con su mayor furia; la tropa Real de Marina, sobre la toldilla, pronto sintió el efecto del sistema de hacer fuego con buena puntería desde los topes de los buques enemigos. Empezaron á caer los hombres mui apriesa, y el pobre Capitan Adair, de los Reales Marinos, fué lastimado por una bala de Râifel, lo que lo irritó tanto, que pidió al Lord

When the dawn developed the scene of this terrible conflict, only two sail of the line (Le Guillaume Tell and Le Genereux) were discovered with their colours flying, all the rest having struck their ensigns. #### SEVENTH LESSON.

The last moments of Lord Nelson.

Previously to the commencement of the battle of Trafalgar, Lord Nelson went over the different decks of the Victory, saw and spoke to the different classes of seamen, encouraged them with his usual affability, and was much pleased at the manner in which the seamen had barricaded the hawse holes of the ship. All was perfect, deathlike silence, till just before the action began. Three cheers were given his lordship as he ascended the quarter-deck ladder. He had been particular in recommending cool, steady firing, in preference to a hurrying fire, without aim or precision; and the event justified his lordship's advice, as the masts of his opponents came tumbling down on their decks, and over their sides. Within half an hour after, the battle began to rage in its full fury; the Royal Marines on the poop soon felt the effects of the system of sharp shooting from the tops of the enemy's ships. The men began to drop fast; and poor Captain Adair, of the Royal Marines, was struck with a rifle ball, which so irritated him, that he asked Lord Nelson leave to take up in the tops and place

*Nelson permiso para llebar y situar en los topes algunos hombres* de la partida de la Marina Real, con un oficial, para contrarestar el fuego destructor (asolador) de aquellos innerrables tiradores del enemigo. Subieron los hombres (la tropa), la jarcia, y cuando el Capitan Adair subía, cayó casi muerto sobre la toldilla, pasado de parte á parte por cerca de veinte balazos de aquellos tiradores. Entonces se enardeció mucho la accion, y fué aconsejado el Lord Nelson (y se aconsejó al) sobre que no se presentase tan conspicuamente, en completo uniforme, para ser el blanco de los hombres del tope del enemigo.*

Debe ser archivada su respuesta en el corazon de todo Breton, y esculpida sobre su tumba. "No," dijo su Señoria, "cualquiera que sea el resultado, las insignias de los honores que aóra uso, las gané por los esfuerzos de marineros ingleses bajo mis órdenes, en varias partes del mundo; y en la hora del peligro tengo la vanidad de mostrárselas á los enemigos de la antigua Inglaterra. Yo nunca me las quitaré. Si fuese del agrado de Dios que sucumba, espiraré con estos troféos entrelazados al rededor de mi corazon." Cerca de las dos, menos cuarto, la<sup>3</sup> bala fatal hirió<sup>1</sup> (struck) á su Señoria sobre la estrella, en el lado izquierdo.

*Por las primeras noticias se creyó que la muerte (fall) del Lord Nelson habia sido ocasionada por un tiro, disparado* desde la cofa mayor del navío Santisima Trinidad. Despues se dijo, que el tira se disparó del Bucentauro; pero la créencia jeneral hoy es, (now) de que fué disparado desde el tope de mesana del navío francés el Redoubtable.*

some of his Royal Marine party, with an officer, to counteract the destructive fire of those sharp shooters of the enemy. The men went up the shrouds; and as Captain Adair was ascending, he fell quite dead on the poop, perforated through with near twenty balls from the marksmen. The action then became very hot, and Lord Nelson was advised not to appear so conspicuously, in full uniform, to the mark of the topmen of the enemy.

His answer ought to be recorded in the heart of every Briton, and engraven on his monument: "No," said his lordship; "whatever may be the consequence, the insignia of the honours I now wear, I gained by the exertions of British seamen, under my command, in various parts of the world; and in the hour of danger, I am proud to show them to the enemies of old England—I will never part with them: if it please God I am to fall, I will expire with these trophies entwined round my heart." About a quarter before two, the fatal bullet struck his lordship above the star on the left side.

By the first accounts, Lord Nelson's fall was understood to have been occasioned by a shot from the main-round-top of the Santisima Trinidad. The shot was afterwards said to have proceeded from the Bucentaure; but the general belief now is, that it was fired from the mizen-top of the French ship Redoubtable.

LECCION OCTAVA.

La Peluca de el Almirante Boscawen.

Cuando el Almirante Boscawen acrecentó tan gloriosamente los laureles cosechados tan amenudo por los marineros Ingleses, y derrotó á la escuadra francesa, se vió en la necesidad de embarcarse en un bote con el objeto de pasar la insignia desde su navío á otro, en medio de una violenta tempestad. En su travesía pasó una bala el costado del bote, cuando quitándose el Almirante su peluca, tapó con ella el balazo, impidiendo así el que el bote se fuese apique hasta llegar al navío en que se habia propuesto enarbolarse su insignia. Asi, por una presencia de animo tan natural en el benemérito Almirante, se salvó el mismo, y se puso en disposicion de continuar el combate que concluyó tan gloriosamente para la nacion Británica.

EIGHTH LESSON.

Admiral Boscawen's Wig.

When Admiral Boscawen added so gloriously to the laurels so often reaped by the British tars, and defeated the French fleet, he was under the necessity of going on board a boat, in order to shift his flag from his own ship to another, in the midst of a violent storm. In his passage a shot went through the boat's side, when the admiral, taking off his wig, stopped the leak with it, and by that means kept the boat from sinking, until he made the ship he intended to hoist his flag in. Thus, by a presence of mind so natural to the worthy admiral, was he himself saved, and also enabled to continue the engagement, which ended so gloriously to the British nation.

Dialogue—Dialogo.

Dionysius.—Amazing*! *¡Que asombro!**—What do I* see? ¡Que veo?—It is Pythias, es Pythias—just arrived, *que* acaba* de llegar**.—It is, indeed, Pythias. Es, en verdad, Pythias.—I did not think it possible, yo no lo creía posible.—He is come to die, él ha venido á morir,—and to redeem his friend, y á redimir á su amigo!

Pythias.—Yes, it is Pythias, sí, es Pythias.—I left, he dejado—the place, el lugar—of my confinement, de mi prision,—with no other views, con no otras ideas—than, *que las de**—to pay, *cumplir**—to heaven, al cielo—the vows, los votos—I had made, *que* yo le habia hecho*;—to settle, para arreglar—my family concerns, mis negocios de familia—according to, de acuerdo con—the, las—rules of justice, reglas de justicia;—and to bid adieu*, *y para despedirme** (y para decirles adios)—to my children, á mis hijos,—that I* might die, á fin dé poder morir—tranquil and satisfied, tranquilo y satisfecho.

Dio.—But why dost thou return? *pero ¡por que has**

vuelto*?—Hast thou no fear of death? Qué* ¿no temes á la muerte?—Is it not the character of a madman, ¿no es del carácter de un loco—to seek it thus voluntarily? el buscarla voluntariamente?

Py.—I return to suffer, he vuelto á sufrir,—though I have not deserved death, sin embargo de que, no he merecido la muerte. Every principle, todo principio—of honour and goodness, de honor y de* bondad,—forbids me, me prohíbe—to allow my friend to die for me, el permitir á mi amigo morir por mí.

Py.—No, No;—I love him, le quiero—as myself, como á mí mismo.—But, pero—I am persuaded, yo estoy persuadido—that I* ought, que debo—to suffer, sufrir—death, *la** muerte,—rather*, *antes que**—my friend, mi amigo;—since it was Pythias, desde que Pythias fué—whom* thou hadst decreed*, *la** *persona, que tu sentenciaste**—to die, á morir. It were not just, no hubiera sido justo,—that Damon, *el** que Damon—should suffer, hubiese padecido—to deliver me, para libertarme—from the death, de la muerte—which was designed, que estaba dispuesta,—not for him, no para él—but<sup>1</sup> for<sup>3</sup> me<sup>4</sup> only<sup>2</sup>, pero<sup>1</sup> solamente<sup>2</sup> para<sup>3</sup> mí<sup>4</sup>.

Py.—Very true, *es** mucha verdad;—we are both perfectly innocent, ambos somos perfectamente inocentes,—and it is equally unjust, y es igualmente injusto—to make either of us suffer, el hacer, que uno de nosotros (de los dos) padezca.

Dio.—Why dost thou then assert, ¿por que aseguraste, pues,—that it were better, que hubiera sido mejor—to* put him to death*, *el* hacerlo* morir**—instead of thee, antes que á ti?

Py.—It is unjust, es injusto—in the same degree, en él mismo grado—to inflict* death*, *el hacer* morir**—on* Damon, á Damon—or on* myself, *ó á* mí**;—but, pero—Pythias were, Pythias hubiera sido—highly culpable—altamente culpable—to let Damon suffer, *en* dejar á Damon sufrir*—that death, aquella muerte (la muerte)—which the tyrant, que el tirano—had prepared, habia preparado—for<sup>2</sup> Pythias<sup>3</sup> only<sup>1</sup>, solamente<sup>1</sup> para<sup>2</sup> Pythias<sup>3</sup>.

Dio.—Dost thou then return hither, ¿entonces, tu vuelves aquí,—on the day appointed, en el día señalado, with no other view, *sin otro intento mas**—than to save the life, *que el* de* salvar la vida*—of a friend, de un amigo,—by losing thy own, perdiendo la tuya?

Py.—I return, yo vuelvo,—in regard to thee, por lo que respecta á ti,—to suffer, á sufrir—an act of injustice, un acto de la injusticia—which is common, que es comun—for tyrants to inflict, á los tiranos aplicar (cuya aplicacion es peculiar)—and, y—with respect to Damon, con respecto á Damon—to perform my duty, á cumplir con mi deber—by rescuing him, salvándolo—from the danger, del peligro—he incurred, *en* que* se constituyó*—by his generosity to* me, *por su jenerosidad ácia* mí*.

Dio.—And now, Damon, *aóra, pues**, Damon—let me, déjame—address* myself* to thee*, *que te dirija la* palabra**.—Didst thou not really fear, ¿Que, tu realmente no temías—that Pythias, el que Pythias—would never<sup>1</sup> return, jamás<sup>1</sup> volviese;—and that, y que—thou wouldst be put to death, *te se* hubiese* hecho morir**—on his account*, *por él** (por su causa)?

Dam.—I was but* too well assured, *yo estaba, empero**, mui bien asegurado (mui cierto)—that Pythias would punctually return, *de* que Pytias volveria puntualmente*; and that he would be more solicitous, *y de* que estaria mas solícito*—to keep* his promise*, *en cumplir* su palabra**—than que en—to preserve his life, preservar su vida. Would to heaven, *¡Ojala hubiera* permitido* el cielo*—that his relations, que sus parientes—and friends, y amigos—had forcibly detained him, lo hubiesen detenido por fuerza! He<sup>3</sup> would<sup>2</sup> then<sup>1</sup> have<sup>2</sup> lived<sup>4</sup>, entonces<sup>1</sup>, hubiera<sup>2</sup> él<sup>3</sup> vivido<sup>4</sup>—for the* comfort and benefit of good<sup>2</sup> men<sup>1</sup>, *para consuelo y beneficio de los* hombres<sup>1</sup> buenos<sup>2</sup>*;—and I should have the satisfaction, é yo hubiera tenido la satisfaccion—of dying for him, de morir por él.

Dam.—Yes, sí!—it displeases me, me disgusta—when I see and feel, cuando yo veo y toco—the power of a tyrant, el poder de un tirano.

Dio.—It is well! ¡está bien! Thou shalt see him no more, tu no le verás mas (por mas tiempo). I will order thee to be put to death immediately, yo mandaré el que seas conducido á la muerte inmediatamente.

Py.—Pardon the feelings, perdona los sentimientos—of a man, de un hombre—who sympathises, que simpatiza—with* his dying friend, *á* su moribundo amigo*. But remember, pero acuérdate—it was Pythias, que fué Pytias—who was devoted*, *el que fué destinado**—by thee, por ti—to destruction, á la destruccion. I come to submit to it, yo vengo á someterme á ello—that I* may redeem my friend, á fin de poder redimir á mi amigo. Do not refuse me, no me reuses (niegues)—this consolation, este consuelo—in my last hour, en mi última hora.

Dio.—I cannot endure* men, yo no puedo sobrellevar á los hombres,—who despise death, que menosprecian la mu- erte,—and set my power at* defiance*, *y que* escarnecen* mi poder.*

Dio.—Guards, ¡guardias!—take Pythias to execution*, *llevad á Pythias al cadalso**.—We shall see, verémos—whether, si—Damon will continue, continuará Damon—to despise my authority, en menospreciar mi autoridad.

Dio.—Alas! what do I see and hear! ¡Ay! ¡qué es lo que yo veo y oigo!—Where am I? ¡En donde estoy!—How miserable, and how worthy to be so! *¡Qué miserable soy*, y que digno de serlo!*—I have<sup>1</sup> hitherto<sup>3</sup> known<sup>2</sup>, *yo no* he<sup>1</sup> sabido<sup>2</sup> hasta este momento<sup>3</sup>*—nothing of true virtue, *nada acerca* de la verdadera virtud*. This fierce animal, este feroz animal—may be considered, puede ser considerado—among birds, entre las aves—as the lion, como el Leon—among quadrupeds, entre los cuadrúpedos;—and, y—in many respects, en muchos respectos,—they have, ellas tienen—a strong similitude, una grande semejanza (se asemejan mucho)—to each other, uno al otro. They are both possessed, ambos estan poseidos (ambos poséen)—of force, fuerza,—and an empire, *y de* un imperio*—over their fellows, sobre sus asociados—of the forest, de la foresta. Equally magnanimous, igualmente magnánimas—they disdain, ellas desdeñan—small plunder, el pequeño robo; (la retería)—and only pursue, y solamente persiguen—animals worthy the conquest, á

The Eagle, el Aguila—also disdains, tambien desdeña—to share the plunder, el disfrutar del pillaje—of another bird, de otra ave;—and will take up, y solo se contenta—with no other prey, con no otra presa—than that which, que aquella que—he* has acquired, *ella* ha adquirido*—by his own pursuits*, *por su solo empeño**. How<sup>1</sup> hungry<sup>3</sup> soever<sup>2</sup> he* may be<sup>4</sup>, *por<sup>1</sup> mas<sup>3</sup> hambrienta<sup>3</sup> que* ella esté<sup>4</sup>*,—he* stoops not to carrion, *ella* no hace presa de la carne muerta*;—and when satiated, *y cuando está* satisfecha*,—never returns, jamas vuelve—to the same carcass, á la misma carcasa;—but*, *sino que**—leaves it, la deja—for other animals, para otros animales—more rapacious, de mas rapacidad—and less delicate, y menos delicados—than himself*, *que ella**. Solitary, solitaria,—like the lion, como el Leon,—he keeps the desert, *vive* en el* desierto*—to* himself* alone*, *sola**;—and it is as extraordinary, y es tan estraordinario—to see two pair of eagles, el ver dos pares de Aguilas—in the same mountain, *en una* misma montaña*—as two lions in the same forest, como á dos Leones en la misma selva.

They* keep* separate, *viven* separados*—to find, *para hallar así**—a* more ample supply*, *mas abundante mantenimiento**;—and consider the quantity, y consideran la cantidad—of their game, de su caza—as the best proof, como la prueba mejor—of their dominion, de su poder. Nor does the similitude of these animals stop here, no acaba aquí la similitud de estos animales; (el Leon y el Aguila)—they have both, ambos tienen—sparkling eyes, ojos centellantes,—and nearly of the same colour, y casi del mismo color;—their claws are of the same form, sus garras son de la misma forma,—their breath, su respiracion—equally strong, igualmente fuerte,—and their cry, y su grito—equally loud, igualmente recio—and terrifying, y terrificante. Bred both for war, criados ambos para la guerra,—they are enemies of all society, ellos son enemigos de toda sociedad;—alike fierce, igualmente fieros,—proud, soberbios—and incapable, é incapaces—of being easily tamed, de ser amansados (domesticados) facilmente.

Of all<sup>1</sup> the<sup>2</sup> feathered<sup>4</sup> tribe<sup>3</sup>, *de todos<sup>1</sup> los<sup>3</sup> animales<sup>*3</sup> plumados<sup>4</sup>*—the eagle flies<sup>1</sup>; vuela<sup>1</sup> el Aguila—the highest, la mas alta;—and from thence, *y de aqui es* que**—the ancients, los antiguos—have given him, le han dado—the title, el titulo—of bird of heaven, de ave del Cielo. He possesses also, tambien posee—the sharpest sight, la vista mas perspicaz:—but his sense of smelling*, *pero su sentido del olfato**,—though acute, aunque sutil,—is inferior to that, es inferior al—of a vulture, de un Buitre. He never pursues, ella nunca persigue, (caza)—but when its object, si-no cuando su objeto—is in view, está á la vista;—and having seized his prey, *y despues* de* haber asegurado su presa*,—he stoops from his height, *se tira abajo* con ella desde su altura*,—as if to examine, como para ecsaminar—its weight, su peso,—always laying it, dejándola siempre—on the ground, sobre la tierra—before he carries* it* off*, antes de llevársela. He* finds no difficulty, *ella* no halla dificultad*—in taking* up*, *en cargar* con**—geese and cranes, Gansos y Grullas. He* also<sup>1</sup> carries* away*, *tambien<sup>1</sup> carga con**—hares, lambs, and kids, Liebres, Corderos, y Cabritos;—and often destroys, y amenudo destruye—fawns and calves, Cervatos y Terneros,—to drink their* blood, para beberles la sangre;—and bears, y lleva—a part

Democrito.—Yo hallo imposible el aderirme á una filosofía meláncolica.

Heraclito.—Y yo soy igualmente incapaz de aprobar aquella filosofía vana, que enseña á los hombres á desprenderse y á ridiculizarse los unos á los otros. A un entendimiento ilustrado (*wise**) y sensible, se le presenta el universo (*world**) en un aspecto desventurado y doloroso.

Demo.—Tu te hallas mui conmovido con el estado actual de las cosas; y esto es un manantial de desventura para tí.

Hera.—Y yo creo que tu te hallas mui poco escitado por ello. Tu alegría y tu crítica burlesca, (ridicule) te gradúan de bufon mas que de filósofo. Que ¿no escita tu compasion el ver al jènero humano tan débil; tan ciego y tan separado de los dogmas (rules) de la virtud?

Demo.—Me siento conmovido á risa, cuando veo tanta majadería y tanta locura.

Hera.—Y sin embargo, despues de todo en* aquellos que son el objeto de tu crítica, se comprenden, no solamente el jènero humano en jeneral; pero las personas con quienes vives; tus amigos; tu familia, empero tambien tú mismo.

Demo.—Se me da mui poco cuidado de los majaderos (silly persons) que encuentro ; y me considero justificado en divertirme con sus locuras.

Hera.—Si son débiles y locos, no es señal (por cierto) de humanidad el insultarlos, mas bieñ que (*rather**) compadecerlos. Pero ¿no es cierto que, tu eres tan estravagante como ellos lo son?

Demo.—Yo presumo que no, desde que, en todas circunstancias (*in every point**) son mis ideas la verdadera contrariedad de las suyas.

Hera.—Hay locuras de diferentes especies. En razon

FIRST LESSON.

Dialogues.

Democritus.—I find it impossible to reconcile myself to a melancholy philosophy.

Heraclitus.—And I am equally unable to approve of that vain philosophy, which teaches us to despise and ridicule one another. To a wise and feeling mind, the world appears in a wretched and painful light.

Dem.—Thou art too much affected with the state of things; and this is a source of misery to thee.

Hera.—And I think thou art too little moved by it. Thy mirth and ridicule bespeak the buffoon rather than the philosopher. Does it not excite compassion, to see mankind so frail, so blind, so far departed from the rules of virtue?

Dem.—I am excited to laughter, when I see so much impertinence and folly.

Hera.—And yet after all, they who are the objects of thy ridicule, include, not only mankind in general, but the persons with whom thou livest, thy friends, thy family, nay even thyself.

Dem.—I care very little for all the silly persons I meet with; and think I am justifiable in diverting myself with their folly.

Hera.—If they are weak and foolish it makes neither wisdom nor humanity to insult rather than pity them. But is it certain, that thou art not as extravagant as they are?

Dem.—I presume that I am not; since, in every point, my sentiments are the very reverse of theirs.

Hera.—There are follies of different kinds. By conde divertirte constantemente con los yerros y la mala compor-tacion de otros, podrá suceder que acaso te vuelvas tú tan culpable y ridiculo como ellos.

Demo.—Tu estas en libertad á entretener tales ideas, y de llorar tambien por mí, si te quedan (hast*) algunas lágrimas de que* poder* disponer. Por mi parte, no puedo contenerme en divertirme con las lijerezas y mala conducta del mundo en derredor de mí. ¿No son todos los hombres ó* locos ó desarreglados en sus vidas? (costumbres.)

Hera.—Ah! pero hay mas que sobrada razon para créer que lo son: y bajo este supuesto, compadezco y deploro su condicion. Convenimos en este punto; el que los hombres no se conducen segun las reglas de unos principios justos y razonables; pero yo, que no me permito obrar segun ellos, debo sin embargo mirar con consideracion los dictados de mi razon y los de mis sentimientos, que me impelen á amarlos, llenándome este amor de compacion ácia sus errores y desbarros, (irregularities*). ¿Puedes acaso tu condenarme por que me compadezco de los seres de mi misma especie; de mis hermanos; de personas nacidas en iguales circunstancias (condition*) en la sociedad (life*), y destinadas al goce de las mismas esperanzas y privilejios? ¿Si entráras en un hospital, en donde residen las personas heridas y enfermas, escitarian, por ventura, tu gozo sus heridas y sus desventuras? Empero los males del cuerpo no admiten comparacion alguna con los de el espíritu, (mind*). Ciertamente que, te abochornarás de tu barbaridad, si has sido tan insensible, (unfeeling*) que hayas podidoes carnecer (laugh*) ó despreciar á un ser pobre y miserable que perdió una de sus piernas; y estás aun tan destituido de humanidad que ridiculizas á aquellos que se te representan privados de las nobles facultades (powers*) del entendimiento, por la poca atencion que prestan á sus dictados.

stantly amusing thyself with the errors and misconduct of others, thou mayst render thyself equally ridiculous and culpable.

Dem.—Thou art at liberty to indulge such sentiments; and to weep over me too, if thou hast any tears to spare. For my part, I cannot refrain from pleasing myself with the levities and ill conduct of the world about me. Are not all men foolish, or irregular in their lives?

Hera.—Alas! there is but too much reason to believe they are so: and on this ground, I pity and deplore their condition. We agree in this point, that men do not conduct themselves according to reasonable and just principles: but I, who do not suffer myself to act as they do, must yet regard the dictates of my understanding and feelings, which compel me to love them; and that love fills me with compassion for their mistakes and irregularities. Canst thou condemn me for pitying my own species, my brethren, persons born in the same condition of life, and destined to the same hopes and privileges? If thou shouldst enter a hospital, where sick and wounded persons reside, would their wounds and distresses excite thy mirth? And yet, the evils of the body bear no comparison with those of the mind. Thou wouldst certainly blush at thy barbarity, if thou hast been so unfeeling as to laugh at or despise a poor miserable being, who had lost one of his legs: and yet thou art so destitute of humanity, as to ridicule those who appear to be deprived of the noble powers of the understanding, by the little regard which they pay to its dictates.

Demo.—Debe compadecerse al que perdió una pierna, por que no debe imputársele el daño (loss); pero el que desecha los dictados de la razon y la consciencia se priva voluntariamente, á si propio, de su socorro. Esta pérdida procede de su propia locura.

Hera.—Ah ! tanto más debe ser compadecido. Un loco de atar que se sacase sus propios ojos, seria mas digno de compasion que un ciego de nacimiento.

Demo.—*Vamos, arreglemos estos asuntos. Hay algo que decir sobre cada extremo de la cuestion. Hay en todas materias razon para reir y razon para llorar. El mundo es ridículo, y me rio de él: es desventurado, y tu lo compadesces. Cada cual ve estas cosas (it*) á su modo ó segun su humor, (temper*). Hay un punto incuestionable y es, que el jénero humano se halla trastornado: para pensar con rectitud y para obrar justamente (well*), debemos pensar y actuar de diverso modo que ellos. El someternos á la autoridad, y el seguir el ejemplo de la mayor parte de los hombres, nos volveria locos y* nos haria* miserables.*

Demo.—Todo esto es ciertamente verdad ; empero tú no tienes ni un amor ni un sentimiento real por tus semejantes. Las calamidades del jénero humano escitan tu alegría, y esto prueba, que no aprecias á los hombres ; ni que tampoco tienes respeto alguno ácia las virtudes que, desgraciadamente, ellos han abandonado.

LECCION SEGUNDA.

Dialogo.

Dionisio.—¡Que asombro ! ¡Que veo ! Pycias acaba de llegar. En verdad que es Pycias. Yo no lo creia posible. ¡El ha venido á morir y á redimir á su amigo !

Dem.—He who has lost a leg is to be pitied, because the loss is not to be imputed to himself: but he who rejects the dictates of reason and conscience, voluntarily deprives himself of their aid. The loss originates in his own folly.

Hera.—Ah! so much the more is he to be pitied! A furious maniac, who should pluck out his own eyes, would deserve more compassion than an ordinary blind man.

Dem.—Come, let us accommodate the business. There is something to be said on each side of the question. There is every where reason for laughing, and reason for weeping. The world is ridiculous, and I laugh at it: it is deplorable, and thou lamentest over it. Every person views it in his own way, and according to his own temper. One point is unquestionable, that mankind are preposterous: to think right, and to act well, we must think and act differently from them. To submit to the authority, and follow the example of the greater part of men, would render us foolish and miserable.

Hera.—All this is, indeed, true; but then, thou hast no real love or feeling for thy species. The calamities of mankind excite thy mirth: and this proves that thou hast no regard for men, nor any true respect for the virtues which they have unhappily abandoned.—FENELON.

End of the first Lesson.

SECOND LESSON.

Dialogue.

Dionisius.—Amazing! What do I see? It is Pythias just arrived. It is, indeed, Pythias. I cannot think it possible. He is come to die, and to redeem his friend.

Pycias.—Si : Pycias es.—*He dejado el lugar de mi destierro, no con otras miras que con las de cumplir mis juramentos hechos al Cielo ; con* las* de arreglar los negocios de mi familia, segun las leyes de la justicia ; y para despedirme de mis hijos, para poder morir tranquilo y satisfecho.*

Dio.—*Pero ¿para que vuelves ? ¿Que* no temes á la muerte ? ¿No es asemejarse á un loco, el buscarla así, voluntariamente ?*

Py.—Vuelvo á sufrir, aunque no he merecido, la muerte. Todos los principios de honor y de bondad me prohíben consentir el que mi amigo muera por mí.

Dio.—Entonces ¿tu le amas mas que á ti mismo ?

Py.—No. Le quiero como á mí mismo. Pero estoy persuadido de que debo sufrir la muerte, antes que mi amigo (y no mi) desde que fué Pycias el que condenaste á morir. No seria justo el que Damon muriese para libertarme de la muerte que, estaba designada no para él, sinó, solamente, para mí.

Dio.—Pero, tu supones que es tan injusto el hacerte morir, como á tu amigo.

Py.—Mucha verdad. Los dos somos completamente inocentes ; y es igualmente injusto el hacer padecer á cualquiera de los dos.

Dio.—¿Porque, pues, aseguras, que seria mejor el hacer que el muriese en vez de ti ?

Py.—Es injusto, en el mismo grado, el hacer morir á Damon ó á mí ; pero Pycias, seria altamente culpable en dejar á Damon (en permitir que) sufrir la muerte que tenia preparada el tirano para Pycias solo.

Dio.—Segun eso ¿tu vuelves acá, en el dia señalado, con no otro objeto que, el de salvar la vida de un amigo, perdiendo la tuya ?

Py.—Yo he vuelto, por lo que respecta á ti, á sufrir un

Pythias.—Yes, it is Pythias. I left the place of my confinement, with no other views, than to pay to heaven the vows I had made ; to settle my family concerns according to the rules of justice ; and to bid adieu to my children, that I might die tranquil and satisfied.

Dio.—But, why dost thou return ? Hast thou no fear of death ? Is it not the character of a madman, to seek it thus voluntarily ?

Py.—I return to suffer, though I have not deserved death. Every principle of honour and goodness forbids me to allow my friend to die for me.

Dio.—Dost thou, then, love him better than thyself ?

Py.—No ; I love him as myself. But I am persuaded that I ought to suffer death, rather than my friend ; since it was Pythias whom thou hadst decreed to die. It were not just that Damon should suffer, to deliver me from the death that was designed, not for him, but for me only.

Dio.—But thou supposest, that it is as unjust to inflict death upon thee, as upon thy friend.

Py.—Very true ; we are both perfectly innocent ; and it is equally unjust to make either of us suffer.

Dio.—Why dost thou then assert, that it were better to put him to death, instead of thee ?

Py.—It is unjust, in the same degree, to inflict death either on Damon or myself ; but Pythias were highly culpable to let Damon suffer that death, which the tyrant had prepared for Pythias only.

Dio.—Dost thou, then, return hither, on the day appointed, with no other view, than to save the life of a friend, by losing thy own ?

Py.—I return, in regard to thee, to suffer an act of inacto de injusticia cuya aplicacion es comun á los tiranos : y con respecto á Damon, para cumplir con mi deber libertándolo del peligro en que se constituyó por su jenerosidad ácia mí.

Dio.—Aóra pues, Damon, deja que me dirija á tí. ¿Que, no temias tu, en realidad el que Pycias no volviese jamas, y de que hubieras sido conducido á la muerte por causa suya?

Dam.—Yo estaba demasidamente asegurado (cierto) de que Pycias volveria puntualmente ; y de que estaria mas solícito en cumplir su palabra á que en preservar su vida. ¡Ojala hubiera permitido el Cielo el que sus parientes y amigos lo hubiesen detenido por fuerza ! Entonces hubiera él vivido para consuelo y provecho de los hombres justos (good); y hubiera tenido yo, entonces, la satisfaccion de morir por él !

Dio.—¿Que, te disgusta la vida (el vivir) ?

Dam.—Sí. Me disgusta, cuando veo y siento el poder de un tirano.

Dio.—Está bien. Tu no lo verás por mas tiempo (no more). Yo mandaré conducirte á la muerte inmediatamente.

Py.—Perdona los sentimientos de un hombre que simpatiza á su moribundo amigo. Pero acuérdate que fué Pycias el destinado (devoted) por tí á la destruccion. Yo vengo á someterme á ella, para poder así salvar á mi amigo. No me niegues (refuse) este consuelo en mi última hora.

Dio.—Yo no puedo sobrellevar á los hombres que desprecian la muerte y que se burlan de mi poder.

Da.—Segun eso (then) tú no puedes sobrellevar la virtud.

Dio.—No. Yo no puedo sobrellevar aquella altanera y desdeñosa virtud que, desprecia la vida ; que no teme á ningun castigo y que es insensible á los encantos de las riquezas y de los placeres.

justice, it is common for tyrants to inflict ; and, with respect to Damon, to perform my duty, by rescuing him from the danger he incurred by his generosity to me.

Dio.—And now, Damon, let me address myself to thee. Didst thou not really fear, that Pythias would never return; and that thou wouldst be put to death on his account ?

Da.—I was but too well assured, that Pythias would punctually return ; and that he would be more solicitous to keep his promise, than to preserve his life. Would to heaven, that his relations and friends had forcibly detained him! He would, then, have lived for the comfort and benefit of good men ; and I should have the satisfaction of dying for him !

Dio.—What ! does life displease thee ?

Da.—Yes, it displeases me when I see and feel the power of a tyrant.

Dio.—It is well ! Thou shalt see him no more. I will order thee to be put to death immediately.

Py.—Pardon the feelings of a man who sympathizes with his dying friend. But, remember it was Pythias who was devoted by thee to destruction. I come to submit to it, that I may redeem my friend. Do not refuse me this consolation in my last hour.

Dio.—I cannot endure men, who despise death, and set my power at defiance.

Da.—Thou canst not, then, endure virtue.

Dio.—No ; I cannot endure that proud, disdainful virtue, which contemns life ; which dreads no punishment ; and is insensible to the charms of riches and pleasures.

Da.—*Tu ves sin embargo, que es una virtud la que no es insensible á los dictados del honor, de la* justicia y de la* amistad.*

Dio.—*¡Guardias! Llevad á Pycias al suplicio. Veremos si Damon continuará entonces* en menospreciar mi autoridad.*

Da.—Por haber Pycias vuelto, á someterse á tu gusto (voluntad) se ha hecho digno de la vida y ha merecido tu favor; pero yo he escitado tu indignacion por haberme sometido (resigning) á tu poder, para salvarlo. Está satisfecho (satisfacete) pues, con este sacrificio y hazme morir.

Py.—¡Aguarda, Dionisio! Acuérdate de que solo fué Pycias el que te ofendió. Damon nunca puedo——.

Dio.—*¡Ay! ¡Que es* lo* que veo y lo* que* oigo! ¡En donde estoy! ¡Que miserable soy, y cuan digno de serlo! Yo he vivido hasta aóra ignorante de la verdadera virtud. He pasado mi vida en las tinieblas y el error. Todo mi poder y mis honores han sido insuficientes para granjearme (produce) amor. Yo no puedo vanagloriarme de haber adquirido un solo amigo en el transcurso de un reinado de treinta años. Empero, estos dos individuos, de privada condicion, se aman uno al otro tiernamente; confia uno en el otro sin limitacion (unreservedly); son mutuamente dichosos y estan* dispuestos á morir; cada uno, por la salvacion del otro.*

Py.—*¡Como puedes tú esperar el tener amigos, cuando jamas has amado á nadie? Si hubieras amado y respetado á los hombres, hubieras asegurado su amor y su respeto. Tú no has temido al jénero humano (á la sociedad) y él te teme, y él* te detesta (ella.)*

Dio.—¡Damon! ¡Pycias! Condescended en admitir un tercer amigo en 'conecion tan perfecta.—Yo os concedo vuestras vidas y os colmaré (load) de riquezas.

Da.—Thou seest, however, that it is a virtue, which is not insensible to the dictates of honour, justice, and friendship.

Dio.—Guards, take Pythias to execution. We shall see whether Damon will continue to despise my authority.

Da.—Pythias, by returning to submit himself to thy pleasure, has merited his life, and deserved thy favour ; but I have excited thy indignation, by resigning myself to thy power, in order to save him ; be satisfied, then, with this sacrifice, and put me to death.

Py.—Hold, Dionysius ! remember it was Pythias alone, who offended thee. Damon could not——.

Dio.—Alas ! what do I see and hear ! where am I ! How miserable ; and how worthy to be so ! I have hitherto known nothing of true virtue. I have spent my life in darkness and error. All my power and honours are insufficient to produce love. I cannot boast of having acquired a single friend, in the course of a reign of thirty years. And yet these two persons, in a private condition, love one another tenderly, unreservedly confide in each other, are mutually happy, and ready to die for each other's preservation.

Py.—How couldst thou, who hast never loved any person, expect to have friends ? If thou hadst loved and respected men, thou wouldst have secured their love and respect. Thou hast not feared mankind ; and they fear thee ; they detest thee.

Dio.—Damon, Pythias, condescend to admit me as a third friend, in a connection so perfect. I spare your lives ; I will load you with riches.

*Da.—Nosotros no deseamos el ser enriquecidos por tí ; y por lo que hace á tu amistad, ni* podemos aceptarla ni* (or) disfrutarla ; entanto que, no seas bueno y justo. Sin estas cualidades, no puedes conecisionarte, sino con trémulos esclavos y bajos aduladores. Para ser amado de los hombres de un espíritu (mind) liberal y jeneroso, es preciso, que seas virtuoso, amable, desinteresado, benéfico ; y que sepas vivir, en cierta especie de igualdad, con aquellos que participan y que merecen tu amistad.*

LECCION TERCERA.

El Aguila.

*El Aguila dorada, es la mayor y mas noble de aquellas aves, que han recibido (que se conocen con) el nombre de Aguilas. Pesa casi doce libras. Su largo es* de tres pies : la estension de sus alas, es* de* siete pies cuatro pulgadas : su pico es* de* tres pulgadas de largo y de un azul subido; y sus ojos son de un color pardo. En jeneral, se encuentran estas aves en las montañas y en* lugares poco poblados, y saca sus crias en lo mas alto de los peñascos. Ellas escojen aquellos parajes mas distantes del hombre, en cuyas posesiones cometen pocas veces sus depredaciones, contetandose mas bien en seguir la caza de los animales silvestres de la selva, que en arriesgar su seguridad para satisfacer (saciar) su hambre.*

*Este animal feroz debe ser considerado entre las aves, como lo* es* el Leon entre los cuadrúpedos ; y en muchos respectos tienen una gran semejanza entre si (to each other.) Ambos estan poseidos de fuerza y de* una dominacion (an empire) sobre sus compañeros de la selva. Igualmente magnánimos, desdeñan los pequeños robos (raterías) y persiguen solamente á los animales dignos de su conquista.*

Da.—We have no desire to be enriched by thee ; and in regard to thy friendship, we cannot accept or enjoy it, till thou become good and just. Without these qualities, thou canst be connected with none, but trembling slaves and base flatterers. To be loved and esteemed by men of free and generous minds, thou must be virtuous, affectionate, disinterested, beneficent ; and know how to live in a sort of equality with those who share and deserve thy friendship.—Fenelon.

THIRD LESSON.

The Eagle.

The golden eagle is the largest and the noblest of all those birds that have received the name of eagle. It weighs above twelve pounds. Its length is three feet ; the extent of its wings seven feet four inches ; the bill is three inches long, and of a deep blue ; and the eye of a hazel colour. In general, these birds are found in mountainous and thinly inhabited countries ; and bred among the loftiest cliffs. They choose those places which are remotest from man, upon whose possessions they but seldom make their depredations, being contented rather to follow the wild game in the forest, than to risk their safety to satisfy hunger.

This fierce animal may be considered among birds, as the lion among quadrupeds ; and, in many respects, they have a strong similitude to each other. They are both possessed of force, and an empire over their fellows of the forest. Equally magnanimous, they disdain small plunder ; and only pursue animals worthy the conquest. It is not till after

No es, sino despues de haber sido provocadas (las aguilas) por largo tiempo por los chillidos de la Corneja ó los de la Urraca, cuando estas* aves* jenerosas, consideran ser necesario el castigarlas con la muerte.

Tambien repugna el Aguila el aprovecharse del robo de las otras aves*, y no se satisfáce con otra presa sino con la que ha adquirido por sus solos áfanes. Por mas hambrienta que esté, no se tira (no devora los) á los animales muertos; y cuando se halla satisfecha, nunca vuelve á la misma carcasa; (carcasa que dejó) pero la deja para otros animales mas rapantes, (voraces) menos delicados que ella. Solitaria, como el Leon, habita sola (he keeps) en el desierto; y* es cosa* extraordinaria el ver dos pares de Aguilas en la misma montaña, asi como á dos Leones en una misma selva.

Se mantienen asi* separados, para hallar una provision mas abundante, y consideran la cantidad (abundancia) de su caza, como la prueba mejor de su dominacion. No acaba aquí la similitud de estos dos animales: ambos* tienen ojos centellantes, y casi* de un mismo color: la forma de sus garras es igual: su respiracion igualmente fuerte, y su grito igualmente recio y terrificante. Criados ambos para la guerra, son enemigos de toda sociedad: son* igualmente fieros, soberbios, é incapaces de ser domesticados (amansados) facilmente.

De toda la especie plumada, el Aguila vuela la mas alta; y de aquí le dieron los antiguos el titulo de Ave del Cielo. Ella posée tambien la vista mas perspicaz; pero su olfato (sense of smelling) aunque fino (acute) es inferior al del Buitre. Jamas persigue (caza) sino cuando su objeto está á la vista, y despues de agarrada su presa se tira con ella desde su altura, como para ecsaminar su peso, dejándola tendida en el suelo antes de llevársela (de volar con ella). No halla dificultad alguna en cargar con Gansos y con* having been long provoked by the cries of the rook or the magpie, that this generous bird thinks fit to punish them with death.

The eagle also disdains to share the plunder of another bird ; and will take up with no other prey than that which he has acquired by his own pursuits. How hungry soever he may be, he stoops not to carrion ; and when satiated, never returns to the same carcass, but leaves it for other animals, more rapacious and less delicate than himself. Solitary, like the lion, he keeps the desert to himself alone ; it is as extraordinary to see two pair of eagles in the same mountain, as two lions in the same forest.

They keep separate to find a more ample supply ; and consider the quantity of their game as the best proof of their dominion. Nor does the similitude of these animals stop here ; they have both sparkling eyes, and nearly of the same colour ; their claws are of the same form, their breath equally strong, and their cry equally loud and terrifying. Bred both for war, they are enemies of all society ; alike fierce, proud, and incapable of being easily tamed.

Of all the feathered tribe, the eagle flies the highest ; and from thence the ancients have given him the title of the bird of heaven. He possesses also the sharpest sight ; but his sense of smelling, though acute, is inferior to that of a vulture. He never pursues, but when his object is in view ; and having seized his prey, he stoops from his height, as if to examine its weight, always laying it on the ground before he carries it off. He finds no difficulty in taking up

Grullas. Tambien carga con (carries away), Liebres, Corderos y Cabritos; y amenudo destruye Cerratillos y Terneros, para beberles la sangre, y lleva una parte de sus carnes á su nido (retreat).

*Aun Niños, dejados solos, han sido destruidos por estos animales rapantes. Se recuerda un caso, en Escocia, de dos niños que fueron arrebatados por las* Aguilas; pero afortunadamente no recibieron daño alguno en su tránsito, y habiendo sido seguidas las Aguilas, se hallaron los niños ilesos en los nidos, y fueron* devueltos á sus asustados padres.*

*Por esto, es el Aguila, en todas ocasiones, una* vecina* formidable (temible); pero mas particularmente, cuando cria sus pollos* (young). Entonces es, cuando el macho y la hembra desplegan (exert), todas sus fuerzas é industria para alimentär (supply) á sus hijos.*

*Se necesita de* gran paciencia y mucho arte (mucha maña), para amansar á un Aguila, y aun cojida jóven y monoseada (subdued), es siempre un criado (domestic) peligroso, pues* amenudo dirige la fuerza contra su amo. Llevada al campo con el objeto de cazar aves (fowling); nunca está elalconero seguro de su adhesion; su innata soberbia y amor á la libertad la instan de continuo (still) á readquirir (regain), su soledad nativa. Algunas veces, sin embargo, se atrae á las Aguilas á una aficion ácia el que las alimenta; y* entonces son de grande utilidad, y proveén con liberalidad á sus placeres y á la sustencia de aquel.*

*Cuando el Alconero las suelta voltejean al rededor de él y se pandean entanto que se les presenta la caza, la que ellas descubren á una gran distancia, y que persiguen hasta su* infalible* destruccion (with certain destruction).*

Se dice que el Aguila puede ecsistir muchas semanas sin alimento, y que viven mas de cien años.

Fin de la Leccion Tercera.

geese and cranes. He also carries away hares, lambs, and kids ; and often destroys fawns and calves, to drink their blood, and bears a part of their flesh to his retreat.

Infants themselves, when left unattended, have been destroyed by these rapacious creatures. An instance is recorded in Scotland, of two children having been carried off by eagles ; but fortunately they received no hurt by the way ; and the eagles being pursued, the children were found unhurt in the nests, and restored to the affrighted parents.

The eagle is thus at all times a formidable neighbour ; but peculiarly so when bringing up its young. It is, then, that the male and female exert all their force and industry to supply their offspring.

It requires great patience and much art to tame an eagle ; and even though taken young, and subdued by long assiduity, yet it is a dangerous domestic, and often turns its force against his master. When brought into the field for the purpose of fowling, the falconer is never sure of its attachment ; its innate pride and love of liberty still prompt it to regain its native solitudes. Sometimes, however, eagles are brought to have an attachment to their feeder ; they are then highly serviceable, and liberally provide for his pleasures and support.

When the falconer lets them go from his hand, they play about and hover round him till their game presents, which they see at an immense distance, and pursue with certain destruction.

It is said that the eagle can live many weeks without food ; and that the period of its life exceeds a hundred years.

LECCION CUARTA.

El Caballo.

De todos (entre todos) los cuadrúpedos, el Caballo parece ser el mas hermoso (el Caballo es el.) Su buena estatura, la lustrosa suavidad de su piel, la graciosa agilidad de sus movimientos, y la esacta simetría de su forma, lo hacen digno de esta distincion.

*Para tener una idea de este noble animal en su simplicidad nativa (en el estado de la naturaleza) no debemos irlo á buscar á los prados (pastures), ó á las caballerizas en donde ha sido colocado por el hombre, sino en aquellas anchurosas y dilatadas llanuras en donde fué producido orijinariamente, (en donde tuvo su primitivo órijen) en donde vaga sin restriccion alguna*, y en donde disfruta desenfrenadamente (ilimitadamente) de todas las variedades de la voluptuosa naturaleza. En este estado (en tal) de una* dichosa independencía desdeña (desprecia) la asistencia del hombre, que solo tiende á esclavizarlo (to his servitude.)*

En aquellos terrenos (tracts) sin limites ya del Africa ó de la America (la Nueva España) en donde corre con libertad, no se siente molestado en manera alguna con las desventajas á que se ve reducido (subject) en Europa. La continua verdura de los prados provée á sus necesidades; y el clima, que desconoce al invierno, es propicio á su constitucion, que parece naturalmente adaptada al calor.

En aquellos paises se ve amenudo á los Caballos estar pastando en atajos (ó manadas) de quinientos á seicientos. Como no guerrean contra ninguna otra especie de animales, se contentan con permanecer sobre la defensiva. Siempre tienen á uno de entre ellos que se situa como una centinela, para dar noticia de cualquier riesgo próximo haciéndose cargo de este deber (office) por turnos.

Si un hombre se les acerca cuando estan pastando por el

FOURTH LESSON.

The Horse.

Of all quadrupeds, the horse appears to be the most beautiful. His fine size, the glossy smoothness of his skin, the graceful ease of his motions, and the exact symmetry of his shape, entitle him to this distinction.

To have an idea of this noble animal in his native simplicity, we are not to look for him in the pastures, or the stables, to which he has been consigned by man; but in those wild and extensive plains, where he was originally produced, where he ranges without control, and riots in all the variety of luxurious nature. In this state of happy independence, he disdains the assistance of man, which tends only to his servitude.

In those boundless tracts, whether of Africa or New Spain, where he runs at liberty, he seems no way incommoded with the inconveniences to which he is subject in Europe. The continual verdure of the fields supplies his wants; and the climate that never knows a winter, suits his constitution, which naturally seems adapted to heat.

In those countries, the horses are often seen feeding in droves of five or six hundred. As they do not carry on war against any other race of animals, they are satisfied to remain entirely upon the defensive. They have always one among their number that stands as sentinel, to give notice of any approaching danger; and this office they take by turns.

If a man approaches them while they are feeding by day, dia, su centinela se dirige denodadamente (boldly) ácia él, como para ecsaminar su fuerza ó para intimidarlo á fin de que no siga adelante; pero al aprocsimarse el hombre á tiro de pistola, la centinela crée entonces ser tiempo oportuno (high time) para alarmar á sus compañeros. Esto lo verifica, por medio de una especie de un fuerte relineho, cuya señal entienden todos, y huyen (y hechan á huir) con la velocidad del viento, guiando su fiel centinela la retaguardia.

Pero de todos los paises del mundo en donde los Caballos se crían montaraces (ó silvestres) es la Arabia la que produce la mas hermosa casta (breed), la mas noble, (generous) lijera y perseverante. Se hallan (Caballos, they) aunque no en gran número en los desiertos de dicho* pais, y los naturales usan de toda estratajema para cojerlos.

El modo usual por el cual prueban los Arabes la lijereza de estos animales es, con la caza del Avestruz. El Caballo es el solo viviente (animal) cuya lijereza es comparable con la de aquella* ave* (creature), la que se halla en los llanos arenosos que abundan en aquellos paises (de que abundan aquellos.) En el instante en que el Avestruz se crée descubierto (aimed at) hace por los montes, mientras que el jinete lo persigue con toda la velocidad posible, y que* procura cortarle la* retirada. Entoncés continúa la caza por todo el llano, al paso que el Avestruz usa de sus piernas y de sus alás á para auciliar sus movimientos (para aumentar su carrera.)

Un Caballo, de la primera velocidad, es capaz de pasarlo (en la carrera*) de tal modo, que el pobre animal se ve entonces obligado á recurrir al arte (artificio) para eludirse del cazador, dando repetidas vueltas. Finalmente, perdida la esperanza de su escape, esconde la cabeza en donde puede y sufre mansamente el ser cojido. Si el Caballo, en una their sentinel walks boldly towards him, as if to examine his strength, or to intimidate him from proceeding ; but as the man approaches within pistol-shot, the sentinel then thinks it high time to alarm his fellows. This he does by a loud kind of snorting; upon which they all take the signal, and fly off with the speed of the wind; their faithful sentinel bringing up the rear.

But of all countries in the world, where the horse runs wild, Arabia produces the most beautiful breed, the most generous, swift, and persevering. They are found, though not in great numbers, in the deserts of that country; and the natives use every stratagem to take them.

The usual manner in which the Arabians try the swiftness of these animals, is by hunting the ostrich. The horse is the only animal whose speed is comparable to that of this creature, which is found in the sandy plains that abound in those countries. The instant the ostrich perceives itself aimed at, it makes to the mountains, while the horseman pursues with all the swiftness possible, and endeavours to cut off his retreat. The chase then continues along the plain, while the ostrich makes use of both legs and wings to assist its motion.

A horse of the first speed is able to outrun it; so the poor animal is then obliged to have recourse to art to elude the hunter, by frequently turning. At length, finding all escape hopeless, it hides its head wherever it can, and tamely suffers itself to be taken. If the horse, in a trial of prueba de esta especie, muestra gran velocidad y no se cansa del todo, se asegura su calidad, y se le tiene en gran estimacion.

Los Arabes nunca castigan ni corrijen á sus Caballos, sinó que los tratan con suavidad y aun con cariño.

LECCION QUINTA.

Alexandro y el Ladron.

Alexandro.—¿Que, eres tú el ladron de Trácia, de cuyas hazañas he oido tanto?

Ladron.—Soy un Trácio y un soldado.

*Alex.—¿Un soldado! ¡el que és* un ladron, un salteador, un asesino, y* la peste del pais! Yo podria hacer honor á tu valor.; pero debo detestar y castigar tus crímenes.*

Lad.—¿Que he hecho yo de que podais quejaros?

*Alex.—¿No has hecho tú burla de mi autoridad? ¿No has violado la tranquilidad pública, y no* has* pasado tu vida dañificando las personas y las propiedades de tus semejantes?*

Lad.—Alexandro, yo soy vuestro cautivo; yo debo oir lo que gustes decirme, y sufrir la pena (what) que te plazca aplicarme; pero mi alma no está conquistada (is unconquered); y si replico algo á vuestros reproches, replicaré como hombre libre.

Alex.—Habla libremente. Lejos de mí el aprovecharme de la ventaja de mi poder para silenciar á aquellos con quienes me digno conversar.

*Lad.—Segun eso, yo debe responder á vuestra pregunta por medio* de otra. ¿De que modo habeis vos pasado vuestra vida?*

Alex.—Como un héroe. Preguntáselo á la fama, y ella this kind, shows great speed, and is not readily tired, his character is fixed, and he is held in high estimation.

The Arabs never beat or correct their horses, but treat them with kindness and even affection.

FIFTH LESSON.

Alexander and the Robber.

Alex.—What, art thou the Thracian robber, of whose exploits I have heard so much ?

Robb.—I am a Thracian and a soldier.

Alex.—A soldier ! a thief, a plunderer, an assassin ! the pest of the country ! I could honour thy courage, but I must detest and punish thy crimes.

Robb.—What have I done, of which you can complain ?

Alex.—Hast thou not set at defiance my authority, violated the public peace, and passed thy life in injuring the persons and properties of thy fellow creatures ?

Robb.—Alexander, I am your captive ; I must hear what you please to say, and endure what you please to inflict. But my soul is unconquered ; and if I reply at all to your reproaches, I will reply like a free man.

Alex.—Speak freely. Far be it from me to take the advantage of my power, to silence those with whom I deign to converse.

Robb.—I must, then, answer your question by another. How have you passed your life ?

Alex.—Like a hero. Ask Fame, and she will tell you.

te lo dirá. Entre los valientes yo he sido el mas valiente: entre los soberanos, el mas noble, y* entre los conquistadores el mas grande.

Lad.—¿Y no habla la fama tambien de mí? ¿Hubo jamas un Capitan mas denodado de mas valiente partida? ¿Hubo jamas—pero yo desprecio el hacer ostentacion (el vanagloriarme.) Vos, vos mismo sabeis que no he sido rendido facilmente.

Alex.—Empero ¿que sois, sinó un ladron—un bajo y un perverso ladron?

Lad.—¿Y que es un conquistador? ¿No habeis vos tambien transitado sobre la tierra como un jenio del mal, haciendo estallar los hermosos frutos de la paz y* de la industria—robando, desolando y* matando—sin ley, sin justicia—no mas que* por* (merely) satisfacer un insaciable deseo de dominacion? Cuanto yó he hecho (cuantos atentados he cometido yo) en un solo distrito, con un centenar de prosélitos, lo habeis vos hecho (los habeis vos practicado contra) con naciones enteras con cienmil. Si yo he robado á meros* individuos, vos habeis arruinado Reyes y Príncipes. Si yo he quemado algunos pueblecillos, vos habeis asolado los reinos y ciudades mas florecientes de la tierra. Cual es pues, la diferencia sino la de que, como vos habiais nacido Rey é yo un simple particular (private man) vos habeis podido ser un ladron de mayor jerarquía (mightier robber) que yo.

Alex.—Pero si he tomado como Rey, he dado como Rey. Si yo he destruido imperios, los he fundado mayores. Yo he amado las artes, el comercio y la filosofia.

Lad.—Yo tambien he dado libremente al pobre lo que coji del rico. Yo he establecido orden y disciplina entre los seres mas feroces del jénero humano, y he estendido mi brazo protector sobre el (en favor del) oprimido. Sé, en verdad, mui poco de la filosofia de que hablais, pero creo

Among the brave, I have been the bravest ; among sovereigns, the noblest ; among conquerors, the mightiest.

Robb.—And does not Fame speak of me too ? Was there ever a bolder captain of a more valiant band ? Was there ever—but I scorn to boast. You yourself know that I have not been easily subdued.

Alex.—Still, what are you but a robber—a base, dishonest robber ?

Robb.—And what is a conqueror ? Have not you, too, gone about the earth like an evil genius, blasting the fair fruits of peace and industry,—plundering, ravaging, killing,—without law, without justice,—merely to gratify an insatiable lust for dominion ? All that I have done to a single district, with a hundred followers, you have done to whole nations, with a hundred thousand. If I have burned a few hamlets, you have desolated the most flourishing kingdoms and cities of the earth. What is, then, the difference,—but that, as you were born a king, and I a private man, you have been able to become a mightier robber than I ?

Alex.—But if I have taken like a king, I have given like a king. If I have subverted empires, I have founded greater. I have cherished arts, commerce, and philosophy.

Robb.—I, too, have freely given to the poor, what I took from the rich. I have established order and discipline among the most ferocious of mankind ; and have stretched out my protecting arm over the oppressed. I know, indeed, little of the philosophy you talk of ; but I believe que ni vos ni yo jamas satisfaremos al mundo del mal que le hemos causado (done it.)

Alex.—¡Déjame! (¡vete!)—Quitadle las cadenas, y tratadlo bien—¡Que! ¡Somos tan parecidos uno al otro? ¡Alexandro un ladron!!!—¡Déjame pensar!.....

LECCION SECSTA.

Ciceron y Augusto.

Augusto.—¡Dios os guarde, grande Orador! Me alegro de volveros á ver otra vez. Yo no he olvidado los deberes bajo los cuales me dejásteis comprometido.

Cieron.—¡Oh! ¡Os podeis acordar de ellos aquí, ya que no pudisteis en el otro mundo?

Aug.—Despues de vuestra muerte encontré á uno de mis nietos leyendo vuestras Obras. Lo sorprendí, y estaba temeroso de que le regañase;—en vez de ello tomé vuestro libro en la mano* (took up) y le dije, que vos fuísteis un grande hombre y el amante de vuestra patria. Vos veis que hablé bien de vos durante mi vida.

Cic.—¡Un buen premio, ciertamente, por haberos educado! Cuando jóven despreciásteis mis consejos, á mis amigos y mi interes.

Aug.—Vos me los disteis (los consejos*) no tanto por mi bien, como por balancear la autoridad (el poder) de Antonio, pues temíais su jenio tiránico.

Cic.—Es verdad: yo no temia tanto á un niño, como á aquel hombre poderoso y violento. Pero me engañé, pues vos fuísteis el mas perjudicial de los dos. Fuí yo, sin embargo, quien hizo vuestra fortuna (quien os hizo feliz.) Por mis Filípicas impresioné á la república contra An-neither you nor I shall ever atone to the world for the mischiefs we have done it.

Alex.—Leave me——(to his guards). Take off his chains, and use him well——(alone). Are we, then, so much alike? Alexander—a robber!! Let me reflect——.

SIXTH LESSON.

Cicero and Augustus.

Augus.—Hail! great orator!—I am glad to see you again. I have not forgotten the obligations under which you laid me.

Cicer.—Oh! you can remember them here, though you could not in the other world!

Aug.—After your death I found one of my grand children reading your works. I took him by surprise; and he was afraid lest I should chide him;—instead of which, I took up your book, and said you were a great man, and a lover of your country. You see, I could speak well of you, even in my life time.

Cicer.—A fine reward truly, for my having educated you! When you were young, you despised my counsels, my friends, and my interest.

Aug.—You gave me these, not so much for my own sake, as to balance the authority of Antony; for you dreaded his tyrannical disposition.

Cicer.—True: I was not so much afraid of a child, as of that powerful and violent man. But I was deceived; you proved the more dangerous of the two. It was I, however, who made your fortune. By my Philippics, I prejudiced the commonwealth against Antony, and in tonio y en vuestro favor. ¡Que no dije yo en el Senado en favor vuestro, mientras estábais en el sitio de Mutina, en donde perecieron los dos Consules victoriosos, Hircio y Pansa! Por sus victorias adquiristeis el mando del ejército. Empero en lugar de defender á los que os habian provisto de armas, formásteis, bajamente, una liga con Antonio, y con Lépido, el mas vil de los hombres, con el objeto de esclavizar á Roma. Cuando se hubo formado este esecrable triunvirato, cada uno de vosotros se mantuvo por alguno tiempo de parte (en favor) de su amigo; pero cada cual consintió, al fin, el volverse criminal, con el objeto* de que su compañero lo fuese tambien. Por esto, permitió Antonio el entregaros á su tio Lucio Cesar, á fin de hacerse dueño de mi vida que sacrificásteis villanamente á su animosidad contra mí*.

Aug.—Yo no podia negarle nada á aquel hombre, por que me hallaba entonces en necesidad de su asistencia, con el objeto de hacerme dueño del mundo. Una tentacion igual (tales ideas) hace casi disculpable cualquiera falta.

Cic.—Tan artera (foul) ingratitude jamas podrá ser disculpada. A no haber sido por mí, nunca hubiérais obtenido cargo alguno en la administracion pública. Yo siento de todo corazon todos los elójos que os prodigué. Vos fuísteis un falso amigo, y os convertisteis en un cruel tirano.

Aug.—Por esta gran porcion (this load) de desverguenzas* (abuse*) yo creo que vais á escribir (make*) mas Filípicas contra mí, aun* mas véementes que las que contra Antonio.

Cic.—No. Yo dejé mi elocuencia en el otro mundo; pero la posteridad sabrá que os hice lo que fuísteis, y que me vendísteis (ó entregásteis) vilmente para gratificar (satisfacer) la pasion (la sed) de venganza de Antonio. your favour. What did I not say in the senate in your behalf, while you were at the siege of Mutina, where the two victorious consuls Hirtius and Pansa perished? By their victories, you acquired the command of the army. But instead of defending those who had supplied you with arms, you basely formed a league with Antony, and that vilest of men, Lepidus, to enslave Rome. When this execrable triumvirate was formed, each of you stood out a while for his friend; but each consented, at length, to become criminal himself, that his companion might become so too. Thus, Antony consented to give up his own uncle, Lucius Cæsar, to you, in order to obtain my life, which you basely sacrificed to his animosity.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

George Washington.

The hero of this sketch possessed probably as perfect a combination of corporeal majesty and strength, with intellectual penetration and decision, uncompromising purity of purpose, and moral dignity, as ever fell to the lot of an individual.

George Washington was born in Westmoreland county, Virginia, at the seat of his ancestors, on the 22d of February, 1732. His father dying when he was nine years old, the care of his education devolved on his mother, whose virtues and excellence of character shed their vivifying impression on the mind of her beloved son—affording another striking record of the power of maternal influence over the disposition of youth.

He early showed a military spirit; and in his 19th year, he was appointed an adjutant-general of Virginia, with the rank of major of the colonial troops. His undaunted spirit manifested itself in various enterprises in which he was engaged, and gave strong evidence of what might be expected from him in the hour of peril.

In 1758, the war between Great Britain and France, (which raged with great virulence in the American colonies,) having terminated, he retired to private life at Mount retiró Washington á vivir privadamente en Mount Vernon, y poco despues casó con Mrs. Custis, que era una Señora llena de cualificaciones suficientes para embellecer una locacion ó ya pública, ó ya privada. En este digno rétiro pasaba Washington su tiempo en mejoras agrícolas, hasta tanto que las pretensiones de la Gran Bretaña escitaron un espíritu de hostilidad en todas las Colonias, el que al fin estalló en una llama, que ardió en todas las estremidades del pais. Se hizo inevitable la guerra, y todas las miradas se dirijieron simultáneamente ácia Jorge Washington, como la persona mas apropiada para conducir sus ejércitos en la prócsima lid, que debia producir grandes acontecimientos. Washington fué unánimemente electo Jeneral-en-jefe por el primer Congreso que se reunió en Filadelfia en el año de mil setecientos setenta y cuatro.

Pasó Washington á Massachusetts, que era entonces el teatro de la guerra, y halló al ejército destituido de casi toda provision militar. No habia en él organizacion alguna; pero su industria y talento superaron todas las dificultades.

La guerra por la independendia seguía con sucesos variados: y probablemente ningun ejército necesitó mas de la influencia sostenedora de sentimientos patrióticos como el Americano durante este memorable conflicto. Pero la vista de Washington se hallaba fija en el objeto, la independendia y libertad de su patria—y ya se levantase la tormenta de la adversidad con un carácter destructor, ó ya soplasen los vientos impetuosos de la prosperidad para hacer adelantar el gran objeto de su alma, jamas lo abandonaron por un momento siquiera, ni la regularidad de su carácter, ni la pasiva decision de su objeto, ni su constante perseverancia (decidida perseverancia.)

La captura de Cornwallis (el haber sido hecho prisionero) en Yorktown terminó la carrera militar de Washington.

Vernon, and shortly after married Mrs. Custis, a lady every way qualified to adorn a public or private station. In this dignified retirement, he passed his time in agricultural improvements, until the pretensions of Great Britain roused a spirit of hostility throughout the colonies, which at last was fanned into a flame, that blazed to every extremity of the country. War became inevitable; and to George Washington were all eyes simultaneously turned, as the fittest person to lead their armies through the approaching eventful struggle. He was unanimously appointed commander in chief by the first congress, which met in Philadelphia, in 1774.

Washington repaired to Massachusetts, then the seat of war, and found the army destitute of almost every military supply. Organization there was none; but his industry and talent subdued all difficulties.

The war for independence was carried on with varied success, and never probably did an army more require the sustaining influence of patriotic feelings, than the American army did during this memorable conflict. But Washington's eye was fixed on the goal—the independence and liberty of his country; and, whether the storm of adversity rose seemingly to overwhelm, or the gales of prosperity to forward, the great object of his soul, the same equanimity of temper, the same calm decision of purpose, and resolute perseverance, never for a moment forsook him.

The capture of Cornwallis at Yorktown closed the military career of Washington.

A esto* se siguió la paz, y el afortunado Jeneral resindió en las manos de sus compatriotas aquel poder (el poder) que habia obtenido tan gloriosamente, por muchos años, en su servicio.

El héroe (he) escogió nuevamente su retiro favorito; pero se habia hecho un objeto* de mucha consecuencia (importancia) para su patria, para permitir que permaneciese en él. El habia sido su caudillo en las armas, y debia ser despues su cabeza en los negocios civiles. En la adopcion (al establecimiento) de la Constitucion federal fué electo Presidente de los Estados Unidos, sin que disintiese un solo voto de la nacion.

Su digna administracion del gobierno confirmó la favorable (la bien merecida) opinion que habia obtenido por sus pasados servicios. A la conclusion del primer término de su Presidencia (presidential term) fué reelecto para otra, al fin de la que volvió á entrar (á reasumir) en la oscuridad de la vida privada (the shades of private life).

Tal descanso, (this repose) que por entonces se hizo necesario, estuvo cerca de haber sido interrumpido nuevamente (again) cuando en una inesperada invasion por la Francia se hallaban vueltos los ojos de la Nacion (Americana) ácia su Campeon favorito. Empero, estaba mui á la mano (próximo) un acontecimiento, que destruyó todas los porvenires (anticipations). Washington (he) fué atacado, el trece de Diciembre de mil setecientos noventa y nueve, de un afecto inflamatorio á la garganta, el que terminó su importante vida en la subsecuente noche.

Washington habia ganado en su patria la envidiable distincion de ser (considerado*) “el primero en la guerra, el primero en la paz, y el primero en los corazones de sus conciudadanos;” y en Europa se le intitulaba (styled) enfáticamente EL HOMBRE DEL SIGLO.

Fin de la Leccion Séptima.

Peace followed, and the successful general relinquished, into the hands of his fellow-citizens, that power he had wielded for many years, so gloriously in their service.

He again chose his favourite retirement; but he had become of too much consequence to his country, to be suffered to remain there. He had been their leader in arms—he must now be their head in civil affairs. On the adoption of the federal constitution, he was, without a dissenting vote in the nation, elected president of the United States.

His dignified administration of the government confirmed the favourable opinion already earned by his previous services. On the expiration of the first presidential term, he was re-elected for another; at the end of which he once more entered the shades of private life.

This repose, now become necessary, was about to be again interrupted, when, on an expected invasion by France, the eyes of the nation were as formerly bent toward their favourite champion. An event, however, was at hand, which destroyed all anticipations. He was attacked, on the 13th of December, 1799, with an inflammatory affection of the throat, which closed his valuable life on the night following.

Washington had gained the enviable distinction, in his own country, of being “first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen;” and in Europe, he was emphatically styled the MAN OF THE AGE.

LECCION OCTAVA.

Franklin.

*En el año de 1714, Benjamin Franklin, entonces niño de ocho años de edad, fué embiado á una escuela de gramática en Massachusetts, como medida* preparatória para recibir la educacion que debia convenirle para ser clérigo. Pero sus padres eran mui pobres para poder costear el gasto de una educacion regular, y á poco tiempo fué Franklin llevado á su casa para seguir el oficio de su padre, endonde empleaba su tiempo en arreglar pábilos, llenar moldes y cumplir con los deberes de un aprendiz de un fabricante de velas de sebo. No le gustaba á Franklin su oficio, y estuvo apique de ser aprendiz de un cuchillero. El precio de su enseñanza en el aprendizaje era mayor que lo que sus padres podian sufragar; y mudando otra vez de ocupacion se comprometió en toda forma con su hermano, el impresor de papeles públicos. En su acomodo leía todo lo que le venía á la mano; se ejércitaba en la composicion, y se atrajo alguna nota por comunicados publicados en el papel de su hermano; y en una ocasion defendió á aquel hermano (al dicho hermano) ante el público, con talento y écsito. Pero el hermano de Franklin era un mui severo impondor de tareas, y lo trataba mui cruelmente. No ecsistiendo medios legales para zarfarse de sus compromettimientos, determinó huirse, y en consecuencia de ello dejó á Boston para Filadelfia, adonde llegó, siendo de diez y siete años de edad. Andando por la calle, compró pan á un ponadero que pasaba; siguió á la multitud que se dirijía á la iglesia; y entrando con todos se quedó dormido; y recordó de que era un extranjero solo, en un país extraño, habiéndolo despertado el sepulturero despues de haberse retirado la congregacion. Tuvo en Filadelfia la ocupacion de impresor, y se hizo conocido del gobernador de Pennsylvanía, por*

EIGHTH LESSON.

Franklin.

In the year 1714, Benjamin Franklin, then a boy of eight years of age, was sent to a grammar school in Massachusetts, preparatory to receiving the education, which was to fit him to be a clergyman. But his parents were too poor to bear the expense of a regular education, and Franklin, in a short time, was taken home to his father's trade; where his time was occupied in trimming wicks, filling moulds, and performing the duties of an apprentice to a tallow chandler. But Franklin did not like his trade, and was about to be apprenticed to a cutler. The amount of the fee was more than his parents could afford; and, once more changing his occupation, he was regularly bound to his own brother, the printer of a newspaper. Here he read every thing which came in his way; exercised himself in composition, attracted some notice by communications published in his brother's paper, and upon one occasion, defended that brother before the public, with talent and success. But Franklin's brother was a hard taskmaster, and treated him very cruelly. There being no legal means of extricating himself from his indentures, he determined to abscond, and accordingly left Boston for Philadelphia, where he arrived, at the age of seventeen. As he walked through the street, he bought some bread from a passing baker, followed the crowd, which was proceeding to church, and entering with the rest, fell asleep, and was reminded that he was a stranger, alone in a strange place, by the sexton awaking him, after the congregation had retired. In Philadelphia, he obtained employment as a printer, and became acquainted with the governor of Pennsylcuya instancia determinó establecerse por sí solo; y con el objeto de obtener los medios necesarios al efecto, regresó á Boston, y ocurrió á sus amigos de allí. Fué desgraciado, (no tuvo écsito su solicitud), y volvió á Filadelfia, endonde lisonjeado con las promesas del gobernador, y provisto por él con cartas de recomendacion, partió para Inglaterra para dar impulso á su fortuna en su metrópoli. A su llegada halló que el gobernador le habia engañado, y que se hallaba en la misma situacion que cuando entró primeramente en Filadelfia. Sin embargo, obtuvo ocupacion de impresor en una imprenta mui grande, endonde se granjeó la mas honrosa reputacion por su industria y virtud. Dejó este ejércicio (this) para regresar á America en una capacidad mercantil, y desembarcó otra vez en Filadelfia á los veinte y un años de edad. Sus proyectos mercantiles mui pronto se vieron burlados, y otra vez apeló (ú ocurrió) á su ejércicio de impresor para mantenerse. En esta ocasion entró en compañía con un jóven que produjo el capital suficiente para comprar una prensa y letras, y ambos principiaron á trabajar (commenced business) en nombre de la sociedad. Pero el compañero de Franklin era perezoso y disipador, y le molestaba infinito. Por una constante é infatigable industria se halló Franklin, á poco tiempo despues, (at last) en la capacidad de comprarle su parte, (to buy him out) y dirijió la imprenta por sí solo. Desde este momento, puede datarse el de su prosperidad (el principio de su prosperidad). Su industria fué incansable y casi increíble, y sus arregladas y decorosas costumbres pronto le proporcionaron el patrocinio y la estimacion de los que (de las personas que) le rodeaban. En este tiempo y* en el año de 1730, se casó, y su esposa fué una señora á la que observó sonreirse de su risible apariencia cuando entró en Filadelfia, comiendo su hogaza andando por las calles y al pasar por la puerta de aquella. Durante todo este tiempo estuvo vania, at whose recommendation he determined to set up for himself; and, in order to obtain the necessary means, returned to Boston, and made application to his friends there. He was unsuccessful, and came back to Philadelphia; where, buoyed up with the promises of the governor, and furnished by him with letters of introduction, he started for England, to push his fortune in its metropolis. On his arrival, he found that the governor had deceived him, and that he was in the same situation as when he first entered Philadelphia. He obtained employment, however, as a printer, in a very large establishment, where he acquired the most honourable reputation for industry and virtue. He left this to return to America, in a commercial capacity, and landed once more in Philadelphia, in the twenty-first year of his age. His commercial projects soon met with disappointment, and he was again thrown upon his trade of a printer for support. At this time, he entered into partnership with a young man, who furnished sufficient capital to procure a printing press and types, and the two commenced business in their own name. But the partner of Franklin was idle and dissipated, and embarrassed him excessively. By constant and unremitting industry, Franklin was at last enabled to buy him out, and carried on the office himself. From this time, may be dated his prosperity. His industry was untiring, and almost incredible, and his correct and grave habits soon procured him the patronage and esteem of those around him. At this time, in the year 1730, he married, and his wife was a lady, whom he had observed smiling at his ludicrous appearance, when he first entered Philadelphia, and ate his loaf, as he walked through the streets, and passed her door. During all this,

Franklin activamente ocupado en la prosecucion de sus tareas literarias, y habia adquirido, siendo el mismo su propio maestro, un conocimiento competente de los idiomas latino, francés y español. Varias pequeñas obras que publicó fuero altamente apreciadas; y en mil setecientos treinta y dos, principió y continuó por veinte y cinco años el Almanaque del Pobre Ricardo, cuyas máximas y preceptos han sido traducidos despues en casi todos los idiomas, y han obtenido la fuerza y circulacion de proverbios. En 1733 fué electo oficial de la Asemblea jeneral de Pennsylvania, y en el subsecuente año Administrador de correos de Filadelfia. En 1736 estableció tambien la Sociedad Filosófica Americana, y puso en planta el colejo, que, con las modificaciones subsecuentes, ha producido la presente universidad de Pennsylvania; y en el mismo año proporcionó para su estado adoptivo, un sistema completo de disciplina militar. En 1745 presenció Franklin accidentalmente unos pequeños esperimentos sobre la electricidad practicados en Boston por un itinirante Escocés; lo que puso su imaginacion en accion sobre el asunto. Esplicó muchos fenómenos que nunca antes habian sido resueltos satisfactoriamente, é hizo varios descubrimientos propios, como el del poder de las puntas en atraer y despedir de sí el fluido electrico acumulado: y el del estado positivo y negativo de la electricidad. Tambien descubrió las propiedades de la botella de Leyden; y fué el primero que inflamó pólvora, magnetizó agujas de acero; derritió metules, y mató animales de gran tamaño, por medio de la electricidad. En el curso de sus esperimentos le ocurrió la idea, de que la electricidad y los rayos eran una misma cosa; y que los fenómenos de los últimos, y los de la aurora boreal podian ser esplicadas por medio de los principios (facts) ya conocidos de la primera (la electricidad); y en 1740 concibió el grande y casi estupendo designio de estraer del Cielo sus

Franklin was actively engaged in the prosecution of his literary pursuits, and, self-taught, acquired a competent knowledge of the Latin, French, and Spanish languages. Several pamphlets, he published, had been highly approved, and in 1732, he commenced, and continued for twenty-five years, the publication of Poor Richard's Almanac, the maxims and precepts of which have since been translated into almost every language, and have obtained the force and circulation of proverbs. In 1733; he was chosen clerk of the general assembly of Pennsylvania, and in the following year, postmaster of Philadelphia. In 1736, too, he established "The American Philosophical Society," and set on foot the college, which, with subsequent modifications, has produced the present university of Pennsylvania; and in the same year, provided for his adopted state, a complete system of military discipline. In 1745, Franklin accidentally witnessed some trifling experiments in electricity, performed by an itinerant Scotchman, in Boston, which set his mind to work upon the subject. He explained many phenomena, which had never been before satisfactorily accounted for, and made many discoveries of his own,—such as the power of points, in eliciting and throwing off the accumulated electric fluid, and of the negative and positive states of electricity. He discovered, also, the properties of the Leyden phial; and was the first who fired gunpowder, gave magnetism to needles of steel, melted metals, and killed animals of considerable size, by means of electricity. In the course of his experiments, the idea suggested itself to him, that electricity and lightning were the same; and that the phenomena of the latter, and of the aurora borealis, might be explained by means of the facts already known of the former; and, in 1740, he conceived the grand, and almost awful design of drawing from the heavens their lightrayos, y de dirigir su terrífico poder, sin causar daño alguno, hasta las entrañas de la tierra. La siguiente noticia de sus experimentos y su écsito (sobre* esta materia*) está concebida en las palabras del célebre Dr. Priestly: “Después de haber publicado Franklin su método para verificar sus hipótesis concernientes á la pariedad de la electricidad con la materia del rayo, esperaba la ercccion de una espiral en Filadelfia, para llevar á efecto sus miras, no imaginándose que una barilla puntiaguda de fierro, de una moderada altura, podria corresponder al efecto, cuando le ocurrió el que por medio de una pandorga comun podria tener mejor y mas pronto acceso á las rejiones del trueno, que por cualquiera otra espiral. Habiendo preparado, segun lo dicho, (therefore) un gran pañuelo de seda, y dos palos cruzados del correspondiente largo para estenderlo sobre ellos, se prevaleió de la ocasion de la primer tempestad de truenos inmediata, para dirigirse á un campo en que habia una sombra apropósito para su intento. Pero teniendo la critica burlesca, que mui amenudo se sigue á las empresas desgraciadas en las ciencias, á nadie comunicó su proyectado experimento, sinó á su hijo, quien le ayudó á empinar la pandorga. Habiendo sido empinada la pandorga, pasó mucho tiempo antes de que hubiese señal alguna de estar electrizada. Habia pasado sobre ella, sin efecto, una nube que ofrecia mucho; cuando, acaso, en el mismo momento en que empezaba á desesperar de su combinacion, observó que algunos hilos sueltos de la guita de cañamo se hallaban tiesos y que se seperaban uno de otro, como si hubiesen estado colgados de un comun conductor. Sorprendido con esta favorable apariencia, presentó inmediatamente las coyunturas de su puño á la llave, y juzgue aóra el lector el esquisito placer que hubo de haber sentido en aquel momento: el descubrimiento fué completo: él percibió una chispa eléctrica mui clara (mui visible). Otras chispas se suc-

ning, and conveying its terrific energies harmless into the bowels of the earth. The following account of his experiment and its success, is in the words of the celebrated Dr. Priestly. “ Franklin, after having published his method of verifying his hypothesis, concerning the sameness of electricity with the matter of lightning, was waiting for the erection of a spire in Philadelphia, to carry his views into execution ; not imagining, that a pointed rod, of a moderate height, would answer the purpose; when it occurred to him, that by means of a common kite, he could have a readier and better access to the regions of thunder, than by any spire whatever. Preparing, therefore, a large silk handkerchief, and two cross sticks of a proper length, on which to extend it, he took the opportunity of the first approaching thunder storm, to take a walk into a field, in which there was a shed convenient for his purpose. But dreading the ridicule, which too commonly attends unsuccessful attempts in science, he communicated his intended experiment to nobody but his son, who assisted him in raising the kite. The kite being raised, a considerable time elapsed before there was any appearance of its being electrified. One very promising cloud had passed over it, without any effect ; when, at length, just as he was beginning to despair of his contrivance, he observed some loose threads of the hempen string to stand erect, and to avoid one another, just as if they had been suspended upon a common conductor. Struck with this favourable appearance, he immediately presented his knuckle to the key,—and let the reader judge of the exquisite pleasure he must have felt at that moment:—the discovery was complete; he perceived a very evident electric spark. Others succeeded even before the string cedieron poco antes de mojarse la guita ; de modo, que pusieron el asunto fuera de disputa (duda); y cuando la lluvia hubo mojado la guita recojió fuego eléctrico muy copiosamente.” Este descubrimiento publicado al mundo por cartas escritas por Franklin á un amigo de Europa, le produjo la mas estensa reputacion en Inglaterra y en el continente; y los tiempos subsecuentes deben el Pararayo al experimento probado tan tímidamente por Franklin y su hijo. Las sociedades de sabios (learned societies) en America y Europa lo ansiaron como miembro ; y mientras que el célebre Buffon diseminaba sus descubrimientos, fué pródigo en sus alabanzas acerca del (of the) filósofo Americano. Ademas de sus experimentos en la electricidad, investigó Franklin, con écsito, el efecto del aceyte en calmar la tempestuosidad del agua, producida* por la influencia del viento. Hizo experimentos para cerciorarse si los botes se remolcaban ó no con mas dificultad en pequeños canales, que en grandes cuerpos de agua : para mejorar el arte de nadar ; y para probar que puede aliviarse la sed, bañándose en agua del mar. Tambien hizo observaciones en sus viajes á Europa sobre el progreso gradual de las tempestados del Nordeste sobre las costas de America, en contrariedad con la direccion de los vientos ; y asi mismo, para el beneficio de la navegacion, é hizo experimentos sobre el curso, velocidad y temperatura de la corriente del golfo. Hizo tambien observaciones curiosas sobre el aire: sobre el poder relativo de los metales en la conduccion del calórico; y sobre los diferentes grados de calor adquiridos por cuerpos conjeniales de diversos colores, por los rayos del sol. Tambien cultivó la música con écsito, y escribió muchas cartas sobre dicha ciencia con grande propiedad ; y revivió y mejoró el Harmonicon, y tocó con gusto dicho (that) instrumento. Y por eso es que se le concedió á Franklin was wet; so as to put the matter beyond dispute; and when the rain had wet the string, he collected electric fire very copiously." This discovery, published to the world in letters written by Franklin to a friend in Europe, gave him the most extended reputation in England and on the continent; and succeeding times owe the lightning rod, to the experiment so timidly tested by Franklin and his son. Learned societies, in America and Europe, now sought him as a member; and the celebrated Buffon, while he disseminated his discoveries, was prodigal in his praises of the American philosopher. Besides his experiments in electricity, Franklin investigated with success, the effect of oil in stilling the turbulence of water under the influence of wind. He made experiments to ascertain, whether boats are not drawn with more difficulty in small canals, than in great bodies of water; to improve the art of swimming; and to prove that thirst may be allayed by bathing in sea water. He made observations also, in his voyages to Europe, on the gradual progress of the northeast storms along the American coast, contrary to the direction of the winds; and likewise, for the benefit of navigation, made experiments on the course, velocity and temperature of the Gulf stream. He made also curious observations upon the air; upon the relative power of metals in the conducting of heat; and upon the different degrees of heat, acquired by congenial bodies of various colours, from the rays of the sun. Music also he cultivated with success, and wrote many letters on that science with great ingenuity; and he revived and improved the harmonicon, and performed with taste upon that instrument. It was therefore, not without justice, that a high rank was

En 1758, fue hecho diputado Administrador jeneral de correos de América ; y en 1759, fué nombrado el Ajente de Pensilvania, y poco despues de Maryland, Georgia y Massachusetts para continuar sus reclamaciones ante el Gobierno inglés; y en Julio de aquel año visitó otra vez á Londres. En 1763, regresó á America, y recibió el voto unanime de la Lejislatura de Pensilvania dándole las gracias por sus servicios, acompañadas de una donacion de cinco mil libras. En 1764, fué nombrado (made) otra vez ajente de Pensilvania para la Gran Bretaña ; y en el mismo año se embarcó y llegó á Londres por tercera vez. Aprovechándose de una ocasion (oportunidad) favorable, visitó á Holanda y Francia, fué electo miembro de la Academia de ciencias de el último pais, y fué recibido en ambos con los honores mas distinguidos. A su vuelta (returning from) de Francia para Inglaterra, se le mandó comparecer, en 3 de Febrero del 1766, ante la Cámara de los comunes, para ser publicamente ecsaminado con respecto á los negocios de America. El ecsámen fué digno del hombre, y ecsitó grande atencion despues de publicado. En vano intentó Franklin apaciguar la irritacion (la saña) que se incrementaba entre Inglaterra y America. Pero mientras habló (manifestó) á los Ingleses en todos sus escritos sobre la importancia con que los Americanos se aderian á la ecsistencia de las relaciones presentes, declaró terminantemente, (plainly) que ellos estimaban en mas la libertad, y que la guerra y les sus resultados les eran preferibles á sus derechos violados y á su actual abatimiento. En vano ofreció el ministerio inglés al rebelde colono, poder—empleos y pensiones. El era inecsoràblemente fiel á su encargo. En 1774, se le mandó comparecer ante el consejo privado, y desplegó en él una magnanimidad que le produjo él mas awarded to Franklin, among the philosophers and sages of the day.

In 1758, he was made deputy postmaster general of America ; and, in 1759, was appointed the agent of Pennsylvania, and soon after of Maryland, Georgia, and Massachusetts, in prosecuting their claims before the English government ; and, in July of that year, he again visited London. In 1763, he returned to America, and received the unanimous vote of the legislature of Pennsylvania, thanking him for his services, accompanied by a donation of five thousand pounds. In 1764, he was again made agent of Pennsylvania to Great Britain, and, in the same year, embarked and arrived for the third time in London. Availing himself of a favourable opportunity, he visited Holland and France ; was elected a member of the Academy of Sciences, in the latter country, and was received in both with the most distinguished honour. Returning from France to England, he was summoned, February 3d, 1766, before the house of commons, to be publicly examined as to the state of affairs in America. The examination was worthy of the man, and excited great attention, when subsequently published. Franklin in vain attempted to appease the increasing irritation between England and America. But, while he told the English, in all his writings, of the importance, which the Americans attached to the existence of the existing relations, he plainly declared, that they valued freedom more than peace, and that war and its concomitants were preferable to violated rights and actual abasement. In vain did the English ministry offer the "rebellious colonist," power, place, and pension. He was inexorably true to his trust. In 1774, he was ordered before the privy council, and displayed a magnanimity, which procured him the highest praise from friends and alto élojio de sus amigos y oponentes, por la calma y modo noble con que se condujo en el desvergonzado ataque de Mr. Wedderburne, despues Lord Loughborough.

Hablando con Franklin, en una de las numerosas consultas que se tuvieron con él por los miembros del ministerio británico, Mr. Berkely, aludiendo al poder de la Gran Bretaña; al número de sus navíos, y á la omnipotencia de sus ejércitos para sostener las pretensiones del Parlamento, dijo: “ Ellos asolarán todo vuestro pais, y reducirán á cenizas las ciudades de vuestros puertos.” “ La mayor parte de mi pequeña propiedad,” replicó Franklin, “ consiste en casas en esas poblaciones. De ellas, empero, bien podeis hacer hogueras y reducirlas á cenizas; pero el temor de perderlas, jamás alterará mi resolucion de oponerme hasta la último á las pretensiones del Parlamento.”

En Mayo de 1775, regresó Franklin á Filadelfia, endonde fué recibido con la estimacion y afecto mas respetuosos; y se constituyó de una vez un activo promotor de varios arreglos que entonces se hacian, preparatórios á una abierta contienda con la Gran Bretaña. Inmediatamente á su arribo (despues de su arribo) fué elegido delegado del Congreso jeneral, y fué puesto por este á la cabeza del Departamento de correos del que habia sido removido por el gobierno inglés, en razon de sus opiniones, (principles). Fué mui activo en solicitar la declaracion de la independencia, que él firmó; y fué un comisionado (uno de los) con Adams y Rutledge, para negociar con Lord Howe en Long Island. En 1776, fué nombrado Presidente de la Convencion para formar un gobierno para el Estado de Pensilvania; y en Octubre del mismo año fué electo, por el Congreso jeneral, comisionado para Francia para obtener su ayuda en la guerra con la Gran Bretaña. Esto, en el año de 1778, por medio de los esfuerzos de Franklin, fué concedido públicamente, y su resultado se ha hecho un asunto de la historia opponents, by the calm and dignified manner in which he behaved, under the ruffian-like attack of Wedderburne, afterwards Lord Loughborough.

In speaking to Franklin, in one of the numerous consultations, which were held with him, by the members of the British ministry, Mr. Berkely, in alluding to the power of Great Britain, the number of her ships, and the omnipotence of her armies, to enforce the demands of parliament, said, "They will ravage your whole country, and lay your seaport towns in ashes." "The chief part of my little property," replied Franklin, "consists of houses in those towns. Of these, indeed, you may make bonfires, and reduce them to ashes ; but the fear of losing them will never alter my resolution, to resist, to the last, the claims of parliament."

In May, 1775, Franklin returned to Philadelphia, where he was received with the most respectful esteem and affection, and became at once an active promoter of the various arrangements, then making, preparatory to an open contest with Great Britain. Immediately on his arrival, he was elected a delegate to the general congress ; and was placed by it, at the head of the post office department, from which he had been removed, on account of his principles, by the British government. He was active in procuring the Declaration of Independence, which he signed ; and was a commissioner with Adams and Rutledge, to negotiate with Lord Howe on Long Island. In 1776, he was appointed president of the convention to form a government for the state of Pennsylvania ; and in October of the same year, was chosen, by the general congress, commissioner to France, to obtain its assistance in the war with Great Britain. This, in the year 1778, was, through the exertions of Franklin, publicly granted, and its result has become *jeneral. Despues de residir diez años en Francia, de Embajador y Ministro de los Estados Unidos, aóra libres é independientes, regresó Franklin á America, en 1786, en donde el júbilo conque fué recibido, no fué menos que el pesar conque sus amigos de Francia se separaron de él. Se hallaba entonces en los ochenta y un años de edad, y la mano del tiempo principiaba á gravitar (press heavily) sobre él. Era entonces un hombre de edad (un anciano); pero no uno inactivo. En 1787, fué nombrado Presidente del Distrito de Pensilvania; y en el mismo año urjió mui activamente por la adopcion de la Constitucion federal. Pero las dolencias* (disease) iban* minando profundamente su constitucion, aunque jamas alteraron (disturb) la armonía (equanimity) de su jenio, ni debilitaron sus facultades mentales.*

En el año de 1790, entonces de ochenta y cuatro años de edad, falleció Franklin. El Congreso ordenó un luto de un mes por él, y no fueron menos vèementes en Francia las espresiones de sentimiento.

*Hablando Chatham de Franklin, hace referencia de él, "como una persona á quien toda la Europa considera con el mayor respeto (veneration) por sus conocimientos y sabiduría; á quien ella coloca (ranks) entre sus Boyles y sus Newtones, y* como la honra no solamente de la nacion Inglesa, sino del jénero humano."*

matter of general history. After residing ten years in France, as ambassador and minister of the United States, now free and independent, Franklin, in 1786, returned to America, where the joy with which he was received, was not less than the grief with which his friends in France parted from him. He was now in the eighty-first year of his age, and the hand of time began to press heavily upon him. He was now an aged man ; but not an inactive one. In 1787, he was appointed president of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania ; and, in the same year, was most active in urging the adoption of the federal constitution. But disease was making deep inroads upon his constitution, though it did not disturb the equanimity of his temper, or weaken his mental faculties.

In the year 1790, then eighty-four years of age, Franklin died. Congress ordered a mourning of one month for him; and in France the expressions of grief were no less enthusiastic.

Speaking of Franklin, Chatham mentioned him, “as one whom all Europe holds in the highest veneration, for his knowledge and wisdom ; whom she ranks with her Boyles and her Newtons ; who is an honour, not to the English nation only, but to human nature.”
